BALLOT PRINTING DELAYED FOR DAY

Alleged Irregularity in Filing Certificate of Nomination For One Candidate Causes it.

TICKETS CAN'T BE ARRANGED

State Election Commission Will be Consulted as to Law—Going After State Ballots.

Because the filing of the certificates of nomination of one candidate of one party which will be on the county ballot is believed to be irregular, the arrangement of the tickets on the ballot has not been made by the Rush county election commission which expected to perform that task last night and prepare the copy for the regular and sample ballots to be delivered to the printer.

The location of the tickets on the ballot will probably not be determined until tomorrow night when the election commission will meet again. Tomorrow Deputy Clerk Birney Spradling, who by virtue of the clerkship, is a member of the election commission, will go to Indianapolis to get Rush county's apportionment of State ballots for the election. At that time he will consult the State election commission concerning the alleged irregularity in certificate filing here and the commission here will be directed in its course by the advice of the State commission as to the law in the case.

The printing of the county ballots will be done at the Republican Company's plant under the supervision of the county commission. The present plan is for the county chairmen of the Republican and Democratic parties to appoint watchers for their parties during the printing of the ballots. This has been the custom in this county, while in some other counties the election commission does its own watching. The members of the election commission have no time away from their business, and regularly appointed watchers will serve the purpose as well.

The ballots will be delivered at the county clerk's office one day early next week and will then be apportioned among the precincts, according to their respective votes. The ballots for each precinct will be counted and sealed and then locked up until Saturday, November 2, when they will be delivered to the inspectors.

The county ballots will contain five tickets—Republican, Democratic, Prohibition, Progressive and Socialist. No information has been received as to how many tickets the state ballots will contain, but it is known that they will contain at least five. When they are procured tomorrow, the State ballots will be locked up until the commissioners are ready to count, apportion and seal them, which will be at the same time that they make up the county ballots into precinct packages.

With the election only two weeks away, the county organizations of both the Republicans and Democrats are at work arranging the details for election boards, particularly as regards the selection of men to serve on them. The election inspectors are selected by the county commissioners, but the other board members are chosen by the organizations of the two dominant parties, each being

FIRST KILLING FROST HERE

Real Ice is Found This Morning, Temperature Dropped to Freezing.

The first real ice of the fall was seen here this morning. The temperature fell to the lowest point last night it has thus far this season. At six o'clock the mercury was hovering around freezing, thirty-two degrees. Early risers say the ground was frozen hard. The first killing frost appeared this morning. It is said that all crops which would have been affected are out of danger.

ELECTED TO SECOND HIGHEST OFFICE

Earl H. Payne Chosen Deputy Grand High Priest of State Royal Arch Masons.

IN LINE FOR HIGHEST PLACE

Earl H. Payne of this city, high in the councils of local Masonry, yesterday at the opening session of the sixty-seventh annual convocation of the Grand Chapter, Royal Arch Masons of Indiana in the Masonic Temple in Indianapolis, was elected deputy grand high priest of the Grand Chapter. Samuel L. Shirley of Lagrange was selected grand high priest.

This not only means that Mr. Payne is the second highest official in the State in Royal Arch Masons, but that he is in line for the election of the highest office at the next meeting.

RETAINS COUNSEL TO PROTECT SELF

Edward Lingenfelder, Alias "Sloan," Goes to Indianapolis to Testify in Bigamy Case.

LAWYERS ACCOMPANY HIM

Edward Lingenfelder, who has been passing under the cognomen of Edward Sloan during his few years' residence here, went to Indianapolis this morning with his attorneys, Smith, Cambern & Smith, to appear as a witness in the bigamy charge which has been preferred there in police court against George Isaacs, who married Sloan's first wife before she or he either one had a divorce from their first mates.

Isaacs is held under $2000 bond, and his trial was set for today. The three-cornered case of bigamy was revealed when Lola Isaacs of Columbus, O., first wife of Isaacs, brought suit for divorce to come into possession of some money and it was learned Isaacs had married Sloan's first wife without either having obtained legal separation.

Sloan maintains that he heard his first wife was married again and naturally supposed that she had obtained a divorce. In addition to the local legal firm, he has employed Indianapolis lawyers to look after his interests.

PHYSICIANS IN SESSION HERE

Meeting of Union District Medical Association Attended by Forty Visiting Doctors.

TURKEY DINNER A FEATURE

Program Included Addresses by Prominent Men—Closes With Election of Officers.

The eighty-eighth semiannual meeting of the Union District Medical Association, which was held here today was attended by about thirty-five visiting physicians.

One of the features of the day's meeting was the dinner served at one o'clock at the Scanlan House. The dinner was served by the Rush county branch of the society. Forty-five physicians set down to the big turkey dinner.

The business sessions were held in the commissioners room in the court house. The morning session was late in beginning on account of the late arrival of some of the doctors from the Ohio counties in the district.

The Union Medical Association is one of the oldest in this section of the State and the meeting today was one of the most successful. The business this afternoon included the election of officers and the selecting of the next meeting place. The last meeting was held in Liberty.

Following the opening address of the president, P. M. Sater of Hamilton, Ohio, Dr. Herman H. Honpe gave an instructive and interesting talk on "The Diagnosis and Treatment of Hysteria." The only local man on the program was Dr. S. S. Woodland of Milroy who discussed "Chronic Appendicitis."

TWO ACCIDENTS IN ONE HOUSEHOLD

Mrs. Joe Wolf Cuts Toe With Ax and George Keith Severs Vein With Putty Knife.

REQUIRE SEVERAL STITCHES

Mrs. Joe Wolf sustained a severe cut on the large toe of the right foot while cutting wood at her home in West Fourth street. The ax slipped and laid the toe open back to the joint. Four stitches were required.

The second accident occurred in the same household yesterday when George Keith, a boarder at the Wolf home cut a vein in his right arm on a putty knife. Keith was carrying the knife in his pocket with the blade pointing upward and when he reached in his pocket sustained a badly cut arm. Two stitches were required to close the wound. Dr. W. C. Smith dressed both injuries.

DENOMINATION OF BONDS LESS

Postoffice Department Announces it Will Issue $20 Bonds Until December Second.

TO SAVING BANK DEPOSITORS

Under old System $100 One Was Smallest One—Advantage to Small Holder.

Postmaster Charles Frazee has received from the department at Washington a bulletin to the effect that by applying on or before December 2, next, all depositors of the postal savings system may exchange the whole or a part of their deposits for United States registered or coupon bonds in denominations of $20, $100 and $500, bearing interest from January 1, 1913, at a rate of 2½ per cent annually, payable in semi-annual installments. These bonds are redeemable at the pleasure of the United States one year from the date of issue. They are exempt from taxation in any form.

Applications for the conversion of deposits into bonds on January 1, 1913, must be received on or before December 2, 1912, by the postmaster at the depository office where the certificates were issued. The postmaster will supply an application form, which must be made out in triplicate. The depositor must indorse and surrender with his application postal savings certificates covering the amount of the bonds desired for which the postmaster will give him a receipt. The bonds will be issued by the Secretary of the Treasury, and as soon as they are ready will be delivered to the applicants.

The conversion of deposits into bonds at a date less than one year after the certificates began to bear interest forfeits interest on the deposits as in the case of withdrawal for any other purpose.

Postal savings deposits converted into bonds are not counted as a part of the maximum of $500 allowed one depositor, and there is no limitation on the amount of available postal savings bonds which may be acquired finally by a depositor. The exchange is considered as taking effect on January 1, and a depositor who has applied to convert into bonds all or part of the maximum balance of $500 may deposit an additional amount in January, though the bonds may not yet have been delivered.

Under the regulations of the Treasury Department a minor can not assign registered bonds without the consent of a duly appointed guardian or trustee, evidence of whose authority must be submitted. A minor has the right to convert his postal savings certificates into registered bonds, but if he should desire to assign the bonds during his minority he must comply with this regulation. This difficulty does not exist in the case of coupon bonds, which are transferred by mere delivery.

Interest on registered bonds is paid by checks drawn at the Treasury Department in favor of the registered holder. These checks are sent by mail to the postoffice address of the holder, and the holder of a registered bond should notify the Secretary of the Treasury (Division of Loans and Currency) of any change in his postoffice address at least 15 days before the interest falls due.

TRY TO ROB SCANLAN HOUSE

Thieves Enter Kitchen But Are Not Successful.

If a couple of thieves had been successful last night, the physicians in attendance at the Union Medical Association meeting would not have had turkey at the Scanlan House today for dinner. The two men were found in the kitchen by the clerk and Mrs. McAllister. They had searched the ice-box and Chief McAllister is positive they were after the turkeys. The police chased the two men but failed to catch them.

KNOT ON LOG SAVES AGED MAN'S LIFE

Cash Patterson, of Manilla, Seriously Injured, Perhaps Fatally, When Skids Twist in Loading.

HIPS AND SPINE CRUSHED

Cassius Patterson, a well-known resident of Manilla, narrowly missed death in an accident at that place yesterday while he and a number of men were loading logs on a Pennsylvania car. He was crushed between two logs and his injuries are of such a serious nature that he will probably be confined to his bed for weeks. They may become dangerous at any time, at it is feared he is internally injured. He was crushed about the hips and his spine is seriously affected.

But for a big knot on one of the logs, Patterson would undoubtedly have been killed. The knot served to hold the logs apart a few inches and these inches meant life to the victim of the accident.

The logs that caused the trouble was four feet in diameter and twelve feet long. The men had it half way up the skids to the car when one of the skids twisted. The log was choked to prevent further slipping and Mr. Patterson, who started to go under it, was warned to be more careful. The warning came too late, for the big log came rolling toward the ground in such a way that he was caught between it and another log, the latter being the one bearing the knot that saved his life. The injured man is under the care of Dr. W. E. Barnum.

LODGES VOTE TO MARCH IN PARADE

Several Organizations Come Forward and Agree to Appear in Religious Pageant Saturday

REVIVAL PROGRESSING FAST

Dr. Biederwolf Tells of the Endurance of Christianity and Gives Three Reasons For It.

Church bells will ring tomorrow morning at nine o'clock for three minutes, calling the people of Rushville to prayer.

Many organizations are coming to the front and agreeing to march in a body in the big demonstration which will be held Saturday night by the religious forces of the city in connection with the tabernacle meeting.

Last night the Odd Fellows voted to appear in the parade in a body. They will meet at their lodge hall the night of the parade and form. The Red Men voted to allow the members to do as they please which signifies that the lodge will be represented as a lodge in the pageant. The Knights of Pythias have already voted to march and are requested to meet at the hall at 7:15 to form for the parade.

The young business men were entertained at lunch again today, and tomorrow at noon the business girls will be the guests. The meal will be served by the Methodist and Christian church women. All business girls are invited to come at eleven or twelve o'clock.

Some special music will be provided tonight at the regular services at the tabernacle.

Dr. Biederwolf delivered a great exposition of the Gospel of Jesus Christ last night in the sermon, "Behold, I Stand at the Door and Knock." He gave three reasons why Christianity will endure through the ages until the Judgement Day. He said the Rock of Gibraltar and the pyramids of Egypt would fall some day, but never the religion of Christ.

Hallowe'en, more commonly known by its slightly contracted name, Hallowe'en, is the zigel of Hallowe'en, or All Saints Day. By the superstitions it is believed to be the night when ghosts stalk abroad throughout the land, making merry in their great release and happy celebration upon the festive occasion.

Although oftentimes neglected in modern practice the most essential part of the old-time Hallowe'en ritual, it seems, consisted in the lighting by each household, of a bon-fire at nightfall. This custom pointed to the Continued on Page 4.

REAL SCORE NOT KNOWN BY FANS

So Rotten Was Game in Richmond

That People Lost Out on

The Final Count.

FIST FIGHT FEATURED FARCE

Wallace, Tormented by Taunts of

test—Were Easy for Locals.

The ball game in Richmond Sunday, which Rushville won 10 to 1, was so rotten that the fans there didn't even know the right score. The Richmond team had no score book and lost count, so often did Rushville score.

The following from the Richmond item will be of interest here:

A boxing contest was added to the benefit baseball exhibition at Athletic park Sunday afternoon and while the baseball game was devoid of interest the mill between Catcher Boll of the local club and Pitcher "Chick" Avery of the Rushville nine, served to drive away about 200 disgusted fans and hold the same number in anticipation of a threatened bout between Second Baseman Cook of Rushville, and Pitcher "Huck" Wallace of the local club developing at the conclusion of the ball game. None seem to know what the score of the game was, but approximates as made by the fans were all the way from 9 to 2 to 11 to 3 in favor of the Rushville club.

With Boll up in the sixth inning Avery tossed up a fast one which "beamed" the local man. The ball did not strike with its full force, but instead a glancing blow. However, it stung, and Boll, swinging his bat, preceded to the pitcher's box, dropped the bat and swung rapidly with his left and right, one of the blows grazing Avery's chin, as the latter backed away, expostulating that he had not intended to hit the Richmond player. The fight was broken up by players on the two clubs. Later in the game Boll apologized to Avery. No arrests were made.

Earlier in the contest, "Huck" Wallace, who is here wintering after a successful season in the southwest which was earned him a trial with the Philadelphia Nationals, was tormented by the taunts of Second Baseman Cook of Rushville. Cook was coaching at third base and rattling Wallace with cries of "Oh, you National leaguer." The pitcher walked over to the coach and an exchange of words, promised he would see Cook after the game. The two did not meet. When Cook came to bat later in the game, Wallace threw a hard one which caught Cook on the elbow.

The baseball game was so rotten that the fans became disgusted very early in the game. Rushville hit Wallace hard in the first inning, but the pitcher would have pulled through probably had not errors by his team mates been so frequent.

HIS COMMUNES ALL FAILED

Career of Jacques Etienne Normand, Who Started Saint Simonist Colonies in Texas.

Seventy years ago a French settlement was made at Reunion, Tex., by a group of disciples of the social reform proposed by Saint Simon. The moving spirit of the colony was Jacques Etienne Normand. Adopting the theories of the Saint Simonists, Normand associated himself with Barthelemy Enfantin and later with Jean Reybaud. Disagreements arose and Normand assumed independent leadership of a faction; in the revolution of 1848 he sought permission to organize a community of his followers in Picardy. When Louis Napoleon became prince-president he promptly expelled Normand from France. In 1851 Normand found his way to Texas and joined forces with Victor Considérant, also expelled from France. Normand was abundantly supplied with funds and bought 2,000 acres near San Antonio, on which he established the commune of La Reunion. The morals of the community were not above reproach, even in a border community, and Considerant urged that communism should extend to the community of women, who were said to be no better than they should be, hence Texas expelled them all. In 1857 Normand endeavored to establish a commune near El Paso and in 1861 he renewed the attempt at La Reunion. For the last attempt he was sent to prison for five years. He died in San Antonio in 1867.

CRABS NOW GETTING SCARCE

Maryland Expert Says Crustaceans Are Doomed to Fate of Terrapin Unless Conserved.

If protective measures are not adopted and enforced the hard and soft shell crabs, which have been abundant in the Chesapeake bay and its tributaries, will meet the fate which has overtaken the terrapin, which awaits canvasback ducks and which at times has threatened the oyster.

This declaration was made by Swenson Earle, topographical engineer of the shellfish commission, who has made a study of the crabbing industry and who was delegated by the late Gov. Crothers to suggest remedial legislation, asserts the Washington Star. A bill was prepared meeting Mr. Earle's views and was submitted to the last Maryland legislature, but it got tangled up with the opposing oyster bills and never emerged from the pigeonhole of the committee on Chesapeake bay and tributaries.

"The best evidence of the scarcity of crabs is afforded by prices at Crisfield, the main shipping point," continued Mr. Earle. "Prices for soft shell crabs has been as high as $1.25 a dozen at Crisfield during the season, though there was a decline the last few days. Only a few years ago soft shell crabs at Crisfield sold as low as 25 and 50 cents a dozen. In the waters of Anne Arundel county only a few years ago a man could easily catch four barrels of hard crabs in one day. He is fortunate now if he can catch one barrel a day."

Crisfield as a shipping point (the most extensive in the world for crabs) shipped in 1910, estimated, 120,000,000 soft crabs.

It is believed by most watermen that the crab, like the diamondback terrapin, which was once so numerous in this state that the slaves objected to being fed on them more often than once a week, is not beyond extermination.

Mrs. Peter Holan, 11501 Buckeye Rd, Cleveland, O., says: "Yes, indeed I can recommend Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. My little boy had a bad case of whooping cough, some times he was blue in the face. I gave him Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, and it had a remarkable effect and cured him in a short time." Contains no harmful drugs. F. B. Johnson & Co.

NEXT FRIDAY TO BE ARBOR DAY

Semi-Annual Occasion Will be Celebrated in Public Schools All Over Indiana.

FOREWORD IN THE PAMPHLET

State Superintendent Issues Program to be Observed by Children—Plant Something.

Charles A. Greathouse, state superintendent of public instruction, has received from the state printer the final proofs for a pamphlet containing the program for Arbor and Bird day, October 25. The day is to be celebrated by all the schools of the state, in an effort to promote ideas of tree and bird conservation in the children of Indiana.

The October date is the second Arbor and Bird day of the present year, the spring day being celebrated April 26. In a foreword to the pamphlet the state official said: "October 25 has been set aside for the rendering of such service in the state of Indiana, and I am asking you, the children of this commonwealth, to assist in all the ways you can."

"Will you not plant a seed, a shrub, a flower, a tree?"

"Will you not help to make clean the alleys and streets, the grounds about your home and your school?"

"Will you not encourage your companions to join you in this work?"

"Will you not promise yourself that you will never in the future heedlessly mar or destroy useful plants and trees; that you will work to preserve every living thing?"

"By the avowed and careful observance of such principles you will not only add to the beauty of our own fair state of Indiana, but you will contribute to the prosperity of the great republic."

Included in the pamphlet are numerous suggested programs and material for programs, all based on the conservation topics. Mr. Greathouse will send the pamphlets to all school officials of the state.

SIGNIFICANT RULING IN DYNAMITE CASE

Court Says Conspiracy Already Has Been Shown.

Indianapolis, Oct. 24.—In the dynamiting trial Miss Mary Dye, former stenographer for John J. McNamara, one time secretary of the iron workers' union and confessed dynamiter, was subjected to a rigid cross-examination and though many rapid-fire questions were hurled at her, she stood the ordeal well. She identified letter after letter when the signature was concealed, and only once made the mistake of attributing the writing to a person whose name was not signed. The defense made but one point out of her testimony, and that was that President Ryan of the iron workers always signed checks in blanks before leaving for a trip and that these were filled in by McNamara. It developed that J. J. McNamara used the alias George J. Clark, and that he had stationery made expressly for this purpose.

Judge Anderson surprised the defense when, in overruling an objection to evidence offered by the government, he declared that a conspiracy had already been proved in the case, this being when McManigal and Edward Clark pleaded guilty. The defense objected to the introduction of evidence showing that property had been destroyed by dynamite, holding that the government could investigate only in respect to violation of United States laws. The objection was overruled.

J. A. Scott, a farmer from near Youngstown, O., former iron worker, testified he was besieged by numerous defendants to quit "scabbing" while employed on the Von Spreckelsen job of erecting Murat Temple in this city in the fall of 1909.

"You're doing wrong working as a scab here," said Charles W. Wachmeister of Detroit, defendant, to Scott, according to the latter.

"You had better take your damned gang and dig out or the whole business will be blown up. You'll find a union card the cheapest piece of furniture you ever had."

Indictment Against Gibson.

Middletown, N. Y., Oct. 24.—Burton W. Gibson, the New York lawyer, was indicted by the Orange county grand jury on a charge of murder in the first degree. He is accused of killing his client, Mrs. Rosa Meschik Szabo.

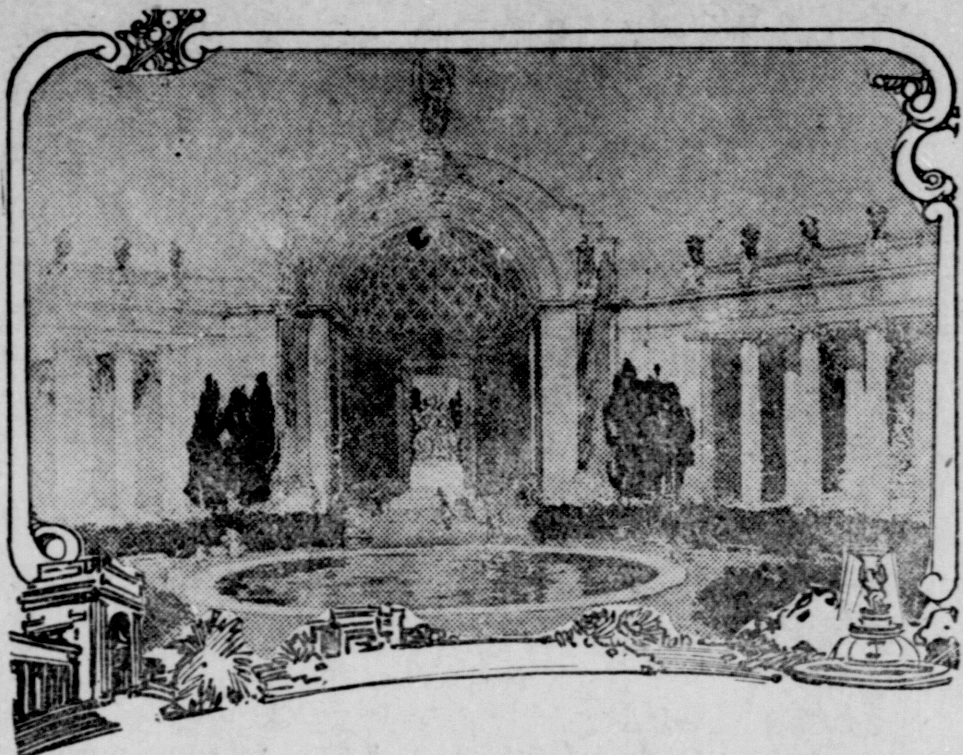

J. G. Criswell, a painter living at 540 North Mulberry St., Hagerstown, Md., states: "I had kidney trouble with a severe pain across my back, and could hardly get up after sitting down. I took Foley Kidney Pills and soon found the pain left my back. I could get up and down with ease, and the bladder action was more regular and normal." Try them at F. B. Johnson & Co.

THE PANICS OF 1893 AND 1907

DEMOCRATIC PARTY RESPONSIBLE FOR THE DISTRESS WHICH MARKED ITS ADMINISTRATION.

FACT IS CLEARLY SHOWN

The Financial Disturbance of Five Years Ago Not Due to Adverse Republican Legislation Nor to Any Cause for Which the Republican Party Must Answer.

With an audacity which can only be explained by the desperate situation which makes a resort to even the most improbable of theories a political necessity, the Democratic campaign text book charges the Republican party with responsibility for the panic of 1893 and the hard times that ensued. "The Republicans have been trying to make the country believe," says the text book, "that the panic of 1893 was brought about by the Democratic bill which was passed in 1894." And then the text book writer proceeds to make merry over the absurdity of charging an effect in one year to a cause that did not transpire until the year after.

Well, here are the facts: The last year of the Harrison administration, 1892, was the most prosperous the country had enjoyed up to that time. Labor was fully employed, capital was actively seeking investment, and the farmers were getting a good price for a big crop. So far as industrial and commercial conditions were concerned, there was not a cloud in the sky. Republican speakers and newspapers tried to persuade the people that they should let well enough alone and that Democratic success might bring disaster. But they would not listen. The prices of some things were pretty high. The Democrats declared it was because of the high tariff and promised that if put into power they would revise the tariff "in the interest of the plain people." There was little expectation throughout the country that Harrison would be defeated, and business boomed right up to election day. But Harrison was defeated.

How the Panic Came.

And then what happened? Why, instantly, men who had money which they were about to invest locked it up in the vaults and said "We will just wait a while to see what happens." Manufacturers engaged in producing protected articles, realizing that as soon as the Democratic congress could get at it their protection would be reduced, immediately began to cut their output to current demands. Who could blame them for refusing to go ahead and pile their warehouses full of goods which might have to be sold in competition with similar products made in countries where the factory wage scale was one-half or one-fourth of the factory wage scale which they had been paying? Jobbers and wholesalers cut their orders to the manufacturers in the same way and for the same reason. Retailers all over the country bought their supplies from day to day, fearing to be caught with high-priced goods when the low-priced flood came.

And so it happened that although the Wilson bill was not actually passed until late in 1894 the panic began the day after the election in 1892. It was not what the Democratic president and congress had done, but what everybody knew they intended to do that wrought the havoc. Indeed, if the Wilson bill could have been passed the day Cleveland was inaugurated the damage to the country would have been far less than that which actually occurred.

The Danger of Uncertainty.

This country is big enough and rich enough and resourceful enough to adjust itself to nearly any tariff law, no matter how bad it may be, if it only knows what it is. But during all the long months of debate over the bill the business of the country was, as it were, hung up in the air. If men had known that the duty on articles in which they were interested was to be reduced ten per cent, they could have figured accordingly. If they had known the duty was to be reduced 50 per cent, or 100 per cent, they would have had some basis upon which to adjust themselves. But they did not know what the reduction would be, so they had absolutely no basis upon which to do their figuring. They simply had to wait and wait and wait, keeping just as close to shore as they possibly could until the long agony was over. That is the analysis of the panic from 1893 to 1897, and no matter how vigorously the Democratic text book may dispute it, it cannot deny or refute it.

Two Kinds of Panics.

There is some reason, of course, why the unthinking should charge the responsibility for the panic of 1907 upon the Republican party, because that party was in power when the panic occurred. But it is to be remembered that there are two kinds of panics, one due to loss of confidence in measures and the other due to loss of confidence in men. A political party is justly chargeable with a business disturbance due to bad measures or the fear of bad measures; but it is not chargeable with responsibility for a disturbance brought about by the conduct of men. It was the fear of injurious legislation that brought upon the country the disaster of 1893-7. And therefore these disasters are chargeable to the Democratic party. But the money stringency of 1907 was due absolutely to the frenzied financiering of a group of men operating entirely outside of politics and having no connection whatever with the government. It was nowhere charged that the panic of 1907 was brought about either by legislation which the Republican party had enacted or that it was threatening to pass. Neither then nor at any time since then has any Republican measure been charged with having brought it about, and the only new legislation which was demanded as the outcome of it was the emergency currency law, the need of which had never before been demonstrated so plainly, and which was promptly passed.

These are the facts in relation to the panics of 1893-7 and of 1907. That Democratic legislation was directly responsible for the former cannot be successfully denied. That Republican legislation was responsible, directly or indirectly, for the latter can not be successfully maintained.

WHY ROOSEVELT BOLTED.

From the Clay Center, Kan., Republican. Taft was fairly nominated by the Republican national convention at Chicago and is the rightful nominee of his party. Had Roosevelt been the nominee, it would have been the duty of Republicans who affiliate with the party to support him. Taft stands in that same relation and logically should command the support of all who claim to be Republicans. Roosevelt bolted his party; not because Taft was not the rightful nominee, but because of disappointed ambition and bitter desire for revenge because of his failure to get the nomination.

A bolter and ingrate and a traitor are synonymous terms in his case and the people will see to it that he is properly punished for his treachery.

No traitor ever succeeded in accomplishing his ends.

History has never recorded an instance where a traitor did not meet his just deserts. It will be the same with Roosevelt.

Out of the Honest Class.

From the Salt Lake Tribune. Governor Johnson's characterization of President Taft as "the most humiliating character in American history," is a fair example of unbridled license of speech gone mad. Johnson's attempt to steal the Republican organization in California and disfranchise Taft voters, puts him out of the class of honest men who are entitled to respect.

Generally Condemned.

The attempt on the part of Col. Roosevelt and Senator Dixon, his campaign manager, to make political capital out of the attack upon the Colonel in Milwaukee, has aroused universal condemnation.

The statement of John Schrank, the man who did the shooting, shows that he was not influenced in the slightest degree by anything that has happened in this campaign, except Roosevelt's desire to be elected a third-term President. The following is a verbatim extract from Schrank's confession:

Q. Well, what object did you have in following around and trying to meet Theodore Roosevelt? A. Well, because I have been reading history and following up history and I have seen that this man Roosevelt is trying to break one of the old-time established traditions of the country, calling it a third-term, which he has no right to; he can create a third party and create all the offices, but to nominate himself it was absolutely out of the way, and I think today that it is absolutely unnecessary to establish now and have the third term tradition to exist and not be violated by anybody."

In commenting upon Senator Dixon's statement, Director Mulvane, in charge of the Western bureau of the Republican National Committee, said today:

"It is regarded as extremely unfortunate that at this time, when the entire country deplores the assault upon Col. Roosevelt, and when it is all the more important that nothing should be done to still further inflame the public mind, Senator Dixon, the manager of the Third Party, should deem it proper to give utterance to extravagant, intemperate and absolutely untrue statements.

"In an interview given widespread publicity this morning, Senator Dixon takes occasion to assert that the enemies of Mr. Roosevelt, in public utterance and private speech, have combined to assassinate Mr. Roosevelt's public and private character, and adds that their violent and intemperate assaults upon him are directly responsible for the murderous attack upon him at Milwaukee.

Senator Dixon and the American people know that this is untrue. It is in itself violent and intemperate language which has no foundation in fact. The evidence shows that the half-witted man who fired the shot has been for eleven years the victim of a homicidal mania against a third term candidate. Nothing said or done in this campaign by any opponent of the man whom Senator Dixon's eulogies has been the inspiration of the deplorable act of an insane man."

A report received today from Republican State Chairman, Fred A. Sims, of Indiana, states that the Roosevelt followers are returning so fast to the Republican ranks that "the poll books have to be changed every twenty minutes." He says that all over the State the Republicans have become convinced that with the reuniting of the Republican party and with the large number of Democrats who say that they are satisfied with present conditions, the State can be taken from the doubtful column and placed in the Republican list.

A writer in the Rochester Post-Express says that we hear and read much these days about the mistakes and errors of President Taft. He makes this comment:

"President Taft made one mistake when he failed to establish a press bureau to constantly pour forth a stream of panegyric and fulsome eulogy whenever he moved.

"Another mistake was not to have

Burrows of Michigan, James Bingham, former attorney-general; former Vice-President Charles W. Fairbanks and others. They will be billed in various counties for one or more speeches.

OPERATION IS PERFORMED

Necessary in Case of Walter Sharp of Milroy, Injured Monday.

Walter Sharp, of Milroy, who was injured in the Hillis machine shop in Milroy Monday, as detailed in the Daily Republican of Monday, yesterday underwent an operation at the Deaconess hospital in Indianapolis to relieve him of pain and suffering. The operation was performed by Dr. J. H. Ford, chief surgeon of the Big Four railroad company, who was assisted by Dr. Hume of Milroy. The surgeons found that the lower part of the ulna was fractured and that several of the small bones of the wrist had been dislocated when the engine in back-firing pulled the victim's arm into a belt and pulley. They now predict that he will recover.

If coupon bonds are lost the government does not undertake to protect the owner against the wrongful holder, but recognizes the bearer only. The owner has recourse only to such means as he could use to recover any other valuable property. When bonds, either registered or coupon, have been destroyed wholly or in part, or defaced, a claim may be filed with the Secretary of the Treasury under certain prescribed conditions for their replacement. Such claims will not be allowed for coupons which have been detached from coupon bonds.

Postal savings bonds can be procured only by the conversion of postal savings deposits and will not be issued to persons who are not depositors. They may be sold or assigned to any person, however, by the holder, and when a registered bond is assigned a new bond will be issued in the name of the owner. They are assignable in the manner in which other bonds are assigned.

The depositor's application must indicate whether bonds are desired in registered or coupon form. Coupon bonds are preferable for a depositor who intends to hold them for a short time only and who has ample facilities for their safe keeping. These bonds are payable to bearer, and the title will pass by delivery without indorsement. Interest on coupon bonds is collected by means of interest coupons, which are detached by the holder as they become due.

very ancient and widely diffused practice of kindling sacred fires at certain times of the year.

While the Germanic nations were having their Osterfeuer and Johannesfeuer the Celtic countries had their Bealtine (or Beiltime) and Samhtheim the former on the eve of May 1 and the latter on the eve of November 1.

It is very probable that the winter, as well as the summer festival was regarded from the beginning as a season at which the fairies were both unusually active and unusually propitious. There is, however, no evidence to show that the methods of divination at present resorted to, although of great antiquity, were originally regarded as limited in their efficacy to any one day.

Bealtane, the name of the festival of the Celtic people, is a compound of the Celtic words beal, meaning the god of fire, and toine, meaning light. It was customary practice of the ancient Caledonians to kindle, at very close proximity, two fires, between which men and cattle were driven, the belief being held that health was thereby promoted and disease warded off.

While we live in an age beyond that of superstition we all enjoy a certain delight when we read or hear told the stories of ghosts, witches, and fairies, and who is there who does not, even if he does not take part actively, enjoy seeing the boys and girls dressed up in their ghostly appearing, fairy-like costumes, making merry as they run rampant, doing their playful pranks in imitation of the once superstitious ideas of our far remote ancestors of the Teutonic lands and British Isles, when the name America was a yet uncoined word?

In years past this eve has always been fittingly observed by the people of Rushville and many preparations are, doubtless, now being made in this city for its celebration, that this mind-haunting time, with its ever-present feeling, a queer association of curiosity and delight, may not, in any measure, be neglected and that we may return and live each year, a few hours, in our imagination, the happy, hardy life of the centuries long past.

WAS RED LETTER DAY IN DELAWARE

Republicans of Muncie And Vicinity
Look Forward to Speech There
Tonight by Watson.

TO BE IN HOME COUNTY FRIDAY

Former Congressman Will Spend Day in Randolph And Attend Reception in His Honor.

Today was to be red letter day in Delaware county, according to the Muncie Press. James E. Watson of this city, who the Press terms "the foremost political speakers of the country, former member of the house of representatives from the Sixth district, Republican whip of the house and the floor leader of the Taft forces in the recent national convention will speak there tonight. The Press says:

Mr. Watson is well known all over Delaware county and will probably draw the banner political crowd of the campaign at the Wysox Grand theater on Thursday evening. He had been in great demand all over the country this year in the campaign, and found it very difficult to secure the consent of the national committee for a few speeches among his friends and neighbors in eastern Indiana. Mr. Watson was very desirous of speaking here, however, and finally made the necessary arrangements.

Watson had charge of the Taft forces in the Chicago convention successfully competing with Governor Hadley and other Roosevelt leaders, and he knows as much as any one man how the nomination of William Howard Taft was brought about. He will prove to his Delaware county friends as he has done in other localities that there was nothing irregular about the Taft nomination and that the Roosevelt cry of fraud was the usual howl put up by a poor loser.

Following his speech here, Mr. Watson will go to his old home at Winchester. On Friday he will make a whirlwind automobile tour of Randolph county, spreading Republican doctrine broadcast in every direction. The automobile party will start from Winchester early in the morning and visit every locality in the county. The trip it is expected, will arouse the republicans of old Randolph to enthusiasm and roll up another old time majority in that stalwart Republican stronghold. Following the tour of the county a big reception will be held for Watson in Winchester at night, and he will deliver an extended address.

When Mr. Watson speaks at Muncie Thursday night there will be with him on the platform Hon. Isaiah P. Watts, of Winchester, Republican candidate for congress in this district. Mr. Watts was an intimate friend of the late Enos L. Watson, father of "Jim" Watson and he has known "Jim" from boyhood. Mr. Watts will also deliver an address at the Thursday night meeting.

Cooley or Maxwell, will pitch for Connersville while Avery or Halterman will be on the mound for Rushville. The game will be called at two o'clock.

FIGHT IS BETWEEN TAFT AND WILSON

Cincinnati Enquirer's Straw Vote in Rushville Gives Democratic Nominee Greatest Number.

T. R. AND BEVERIDGE THIRD

The straw vote taken by the Cincinnati Enquirer in Rushville Tuesday and published in the Enquirer this morning indicates, if it can be taken as any criterion at all, that the fight in Rushville for president and governor of the State lay between the Republicans and Democrats. In the poll taken here Wilson leads, Taft is a fairly good second and Roosevelt is third. The same holds true in the gubernatorial situation. Ralston is first, Durbin, second and Beveridge, third.

The vote in Rushville was as follows: Wilson, 142; Taft, 120; Roosevelt, 87; Debs, 11. The vote for governor was: Ralston, 126; Durbin, 94; Beveridge, 86. It will readily be seen that Wilson leads Taft by 22 votes and Taft has a lead of 33 over Roosevelt. Ralston got 32 votes more than Durbin and Durbin got 8 more than Beveridge.

The vote was taken mostly in business houses. Three factories were visited and a ballot was taken on a Big Four train between here and Greensburg and on an I. & C. car between here and Indianapolis. One ballot was taken on the street.

The Palace offers a special two reel Milano attraction tonight entitled "The Battles of Two Palms." The picture is an exact reproduction of the most important conflict of the Italian-Turkish war, being no fake but showing actual scenes.

Mrs. Fiske, in a new play, "The High Road," by Edward Sheldon, author "The Nigger," Salvation Nell," etc., appears at English's in Indianapolis Friday and Saturday. The drama recites the story of a woman's life, recording her early struggle in a hostile environment, her youthful experiences, her steady spiritual development and her gradual rise to the duty that life seems to make her destiny. Despite the fact that the heroine begins life amidst sordid surroundings, she is possessed of a romantic disposition that trends to make the conditions endurable. This she retains throughout the career that it outlined in the play, succeeding in the face of crushing disasters and coming, finally, into a happiness that is all the greater because it has been wholly unselfish. In Mrs. Fiske's support appear Frederick Perry, Arthur Byron, William Lewers and others. The engagement includes a matinee Saturday.

The Women's Candidate

By BYRON WILLIAMS

"You are wasting your time trying to bully me," replied the girl, without a tremor in her voice. "I am perfectly harmless and I have told you all I know. The man has gone up the beach."

"Aw, come on, Sid," broke in a slender young fellow, turning his back to the rain. "What the use of argu'ing with th' gal? She ain't th' one we had yesterday."

Without a word the sheriff veered around the beat and, following the fast fading trail, set out in haste after Bedight. Fifteen minutes later the mayor came up from the opposite direction.

"I am sorry, Miss Brooks," he said, sorrowfully, "but I'm afraid you'll get wet after all. We've got to get away from here! I circled around and found the boat these fellows left. I set it adrift with a gale blowing it across the lake, but they are not far behind. We must get under way as soon as possible."

"I don't mind a soaking," replied the young woman, bravely. "It's the lightning that frightens me—and that's about quit."

The man righted the dory hurriedly, piled in their belongings and set the boat from the shore with a sturdy shove. A half mile below, on the beach, he caught sight of three men running toward them—and far away on the wave-whipped lake, a tiny dot of brown could be seen rising and falling as it scudded before the wind. It was the sheriff's row boat.

"Sleeping out of doors," said the mayor, smiling at the woman opposite, "is very beneficial to the lungs—especially on an island."

CHAPTER VIII.

When the waves are running freely it is a stiff pull from Mine Host's select little hotel in the Wisconsin woods to Glen Island, but on a perfect moonlight night, with just breeze sufficient to ripple the fair hair of a pretty girl opposite, the man at the oars seldom finds the task arduous.

Nor did Mayor Bedight complain. The running ripple slapped the prow of the boat rhythmically and from the shadows along the approaching shore of the island the weird hoot of an owl proclaimed the witchery of the night.

With a scarcely perceptible tilt, the boat grounded on the shelving sandy shore. Bedight sprang out and pulled the craft further upon its cushioned anchorage. The girl sat in the boat, intently watching the mayor. That gentleman took from the locker a basket well laden. Quickly gathering some dry wood, he stacked it over a bunch of tinder-like weeds, touched a match to the pile, set the basket at a safe distance and pulling a revolver from his pocket, fired in the general direction of the moon.

Having maneuvered thus peculiarly, he hastened back to the boat, shoved off and rowed from the shore a hundred yards. Resting on his oars, he let the boat toss idly upon the lake. Five, ten minutes passed. The dry wood burned brightly, making a beacon of light, into the circle of which there came, at last, three shadows, followed by unintelligible conversation.

"They've found it," said the mayor,

picking up his oars and turning the boat toward the hotel.

It was midnight when the sides of the craft rubbed its sister boats at Mine Host's dock. The mayor and the girl crept softly up the winding pathway toward the hotel. Suddenly, in the moonlight ahead, the form of a woman appeared advancing to meet them. The mayor and the girl saw her simultaneously. He stopped instantly with a restraining hand upon the girl's arm.

"Quick!" he commanded, springing in front of his companion and turning her about face. "Walk rapidly down the path to the boathouse."

She complied instantly.

Over his shoulder the mayor saw the woman hesitate, then follow determinedly through the shimmering moonlight.

"Go into the boathouse," directed Bedight hurriedly. "Wait until I engage her in conversation. Then open the rear door and run for the hotel. And be quiet!"

"I understand," whispered the girl, excitedly.

Slipping through the door, she closed it softly. Pulling a cigar from his pocket, the mayor scratched a match on the sole of his shoe and blew a puff of smoke at the same target which earlier in the evening he had failed to hit with his leaden missile.

The woman rounded the corner and came directly toward him.

"I beg your pardon, Mr. Bedight," said "Judge" Vining in a cold, formal voice, "for following you, but as chaperone of the young ladies at the hotel I feel that it was my duty to do so."

The mayor bowed.

"Duty to the one performing it," he interrupted gallantly, "is oftentimes irksome, but begrudgingly done frequently conveys pleasure to another. I do not desire to appear selfish in your eyes, but I find your duty pleases me greatly," bowing again. "Now, the moonlight—"

The "judge" made a deprecating gesture.

"Do not attempt to evade," she warned. "I am deeply in earnest. Where is the—the—" She seemed at a loss to proceed. Finally she threw diplomacy to the winds. "Who was the girl with you—alone—at this hour of the night? I have a right to know and I—had thought you a gentleman, though I should have known that no gentleman would have—have—" she finished lamely.

"Kissed you?" questioned the mayor, the frivolity scarcely gone from his voice.

"Certainly!" she flashed.

Bedight puffed thoughtfully at his cigar, the fragrant pungency of the tobacco wafting to Jackie as she stood in the moonbeam's path, the light giving an ethereal beauty to her trim, erect figure.

"It was wrong, I admit," he said impulsively, "I am willing to admit that—but I refuse to believe that no gentleman could be other than honored by such a privilege. As one who has tried to be such, I would be willing to do it again if—"

"Mr. Bedight"—the voice was keen now—and the mayor hesitated. "I did not come here to bandy words. I never shall cease regretting that I am in a sense guilty of a misdemeanor which makes it impossible for me to condemn you as I should—but I warn you not to presume to justify further presumption."

Miss Vining paused effectively.

"But you have not answered my question, Mr. Bedight," she continued. "Who was the girl that came down the path with you?"

The man drew closer to her. The flippancy was gone from his voice. His face was earnest.

"Miss Vining, you have inferred that I am guilty of conduct unbecoming a gentleman. A few mornings ago you ran after me in a spirit of mischief, and in the same spirit I caught you in my arms and kissed you. If I have hurt you I am sincerely sorry, but I, too, am reaping the fruit of folly. You have chosen to arm yourself with a distant demeanor toward me, you rebuff my attempts at entering the circle of your real self, you are 'judge' both on and off the bench, distant, suspicious, haughty. You pursued me; I took toll. With your permission I promise to forget that you ran, but I cannot forget that I kissed you. I am not a boy. I have seen some of the world. I do not know much about love. I have been too busy trying to do something, to fall in love, or else I never have happened to meet the woman. Since coming here I don't know exactly what sort of an enchantment I have entered—but I do know that I cannot forget the ecstasy of the moment when our lips met. You may scorn me and it lies within your power to discipline me—or defeat me—but I shall not try to obliterate the thrill of that brief moment!"

Jackie Vining did not meet his eyes. In her heart she felt a strange, new feeling of elation, a softening of resentment, but women were theorems long before mathematicians struggled with right-angle triangles and hypotenuses, and all their non-understanding descendants, beautiful and sweet and charming as they are, still persist in being man's hardest problem.

"Your frankness in some things," she said without emotion, "is as commendable as your lack of it in others. Must I repeat my question still another time? Who is the girl?"

The mayor spoke firmly and with decision.

"As a man who is at least that much of a gentleman, I refuse to answer. The girl has done no wrong. She—"

"Mr. Bedight, on Tuesday night I saw one of my crowd of young ladies leave the arbor after a clandestine night meeting with you. Tonight I chance to blunder upon you at midnight, again in the company of a young woman. There are no others here, aside from our party. I feel a responsibility and I must insist on your answering."

The mayor shrugged his shoulders.

"Who was she?" asked the "judge" for the fourth time.

"Why don't you ask her yourself?" said the mayor.

"Where is she?"

"The last I saw of her she went through that door," he replied, doggedly.

Miss Vining stepped toward the door and opened it. In the farther end of the boathouse a second door stood open and through it the moonlight streamed.

"I see I have been outwitted," angrily.

"May I walk to the hotel with you?" asked the mayor humbly.

"I prefer to go alone," she replied in a tone of finality, starting up the path.

"Miss Vining!"

It was the mayor calling from the dock.

She stopped.

"What is it, Mr. Bedight?" impatiently.

"You remember saying the girl with me must be one of your party because there were no other young ladies about?"

"Yes," crisply.

The mayor's voice had something of the old ring in it as he asked: "Did you think of the colored cook?"

But the "judge," going up the path briskly, did not deign to reply.

CHAPTER IX.

When Miss Jackie Vining went to her room after her unsatisfactory attempt to wring from Bedight the name of the unconventional young woman who walked with him in the moonlight, she was angry. And it is possible that, knowing his feelings toward her she was angrier still because with this influence she could not secure the confession she sought. It is likewise true that she felt in her heart that Bedight was right in protecting the name of the girl and should be eulogized rather than scolded for it—and yet, when a man has almost told a woman he loves her, she has a right to expect that he will do almost anything quasi-reasonable that she asks of him. Failing to handle him augurs complications for the future.

And most of us are alike in this, that we love to appear melodramatic to ourselves, doing all sorts of drastic things that, slept over, we undo, saying things that we inflate with self at the time being and stick a pin into later when our ardor has cooled. In this mood Jackie Vining seated herself at a small writing desk in her room and indited the following letter to the chairman of the woman's clubs in Bedight's district:

Molly McConnell.
"Squirrel Inn, Wis.

"My Dear Madam: The campaign in your district is about to open. Among the candidates is one Walter Bedight, who is running for the legislature. He will endeavor to secure the women's votes of the district. While running a race near Squirrel Inn he dropped from his pocket the inclosed bill, which he expects to introduce, if elected.

"I feel it my duty to apprise you of the real character of the man and trust that you will act accordingly.

"Sincerely,
"(Miss) JACKIE VINING."

Placing the letter and the bill in a long envelope, she laid the package on her dresser and retired.

But with the cool touch of the linen and the luxury of full repose, Jackie's heart smote her.

"Well, anyhow," she mused, as she dropped off to sleep, "I'll hold the letter a few days longer."

Miss Farnsworth Sat Holding Her Ankle in Both Hands.

if the aforesaid attorney is a woman, oh, most unfortunate is the man! Thursday was Mayor Bedight's day of attendance upon Margaret Farnsworth, who prosecuted the case against him on the morning of his arrival. She entered the arena after an earnest conference with "Judge" Vining, who seemed unusually distraught and worried.

"Mr. Bedight," began the lady attorney, in a professional tone, "I want to get some balsam for a pillow this morning. Do you know the tree when you see it?"

"Yes—I've been in the North Woods on many a vacation and am familiar with the flora and fauna of the country. I am at your service," responded the mayor.

They set out on foot along a pathway that led into the wood. Once inside the forest it wound in a trail like that the calf made, through spruce and hemlock, poplar and maple, with now and then a white birch adding a touch of vivid contrast to the green. The girl, an enthusiast, was walking ahead and babbling of the nature pictures along the way.

Suddenly Bedight felt something hit him in the back, as though a pellet thrown from close range. He turned inquiringly. From a clump of brush along the trail a woman's hand waved at him and a white paper fluttered to the path. Turning, the mayor retraced his steps. The messenger crouched low and Bedight, having secured the message, touched his fingers to his lips and waived her a salutation, chaste and replete with appreciation.

And then from ahead came the surprised call of Miss Farnsworth.

"Hurry!" cautioned a voice from behind the clump of greenery.

"Coming," cried Bedight, turning and forging ahead through the wood. A pair of pheasants arose with drumming whirr from beside the path.

"There!" exclaimed the mayor, accepting the birds as the foundation for a clever ruse, "you've frightened them away."

POMERENE GOT ON COLD TRAIL

Ohio Senator Has It In for Some Hoosier.

GOT A LETTER FROM INDIANA

This Purported to Give Harrowing Details of the Perkins Interest in the Campaign of Senator Beveridge in 1904, and Led to the Calling of Several Indians Before the Senate Investigating Committee.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The gentleman who put the con in Connersville, Ind., is being sought by Senator Alcee Pomerene of Ohio, militant inquisitor of the senate committee investigating campaign funds. If he finds him he firmly believes he will have established the identity of the fellow who sent him information in regard to the money that George W. Perkins gave to Albert J. Beveridge, the present Bull Moose candidate for governor of Indiana, in his campaign for re-election to the senate in 1904.

Three smug-looking politicians from Indiana arrived in Washington yesterday and a little later they were on the witness stand before the Clapp committee telling what they knew about money bestowed by Perkins on Beveridge for campaign purposes in 1904.

Senator Pomerene had received a letter several days ago from Indiana purporting to give him all the harrowing details of the transaction and urging him to call certain Indiana witnesses, among them those present at yesterday's hearing, who could tell about it. Mr. Perkins had testified that he sent $10,000 to Mr. Beveridge, but that the Indiana senator returned it to him. Senator Pomerene had convinced himself that he was on the track of a much larger fund and that this $10,000 was only a part of the total supplied to Beveridge by Perkins.

Three witnesses in turn, Larz Whitcomb, Lee G. Rothchild and John F. Hayes, all one time political lieutenants of Senator Beveridge, testified to the fact that the money had been returned. The proposed gifts were identified by each of the witnesses, as follows: From George W. Perkins, three checks for $10,000 each; from Edward B. McLane of Greenfield, O., a cousin of the senator, $25,000, and from Gifford Pinchot, $2,500. The witnesses knew of no other funds contributed to Senator Beveridge's campaign.

Senator Pomerene succeeded in scoring, however, by bringing out the fact that Mr. Perkins contributed $30,000 to the Beveridge campaign. Perkins himself has said that $10,000 was all he could recall ever having sent to Mr. Beveridge. One of Senator Pomerene's purposes in digging into the Indiana contributions was to discredit, if possible, Mr. Perkins's testimony before the committee.

The committee, after this brief session, recessed for the day. Senator Clapp said the committee might have no more witnesses until after election. Senator Beveridge wired that he could come on Saturday. The committee sent a telegram to him asking him if he could appear earlier. If he fails to respond it is believed the committee will give up the quest for information. Senator Penrose communicated with the committee from New York the information that he did not desire to testify at this time.

IN JURY'S HANDS

Becker Case Now Is Up to the Twelve Good Men and True.

New York, Oct. 24.—The best and the worst for Lieutenant Becker has all been said. The jurors went to their hotel last night to sleep over Mr. McIntyre's furious denunciation of the informers and of District Attorney Whitman and over Assistant District Attorney Frank Moss's calm analysis of the defense's own evidence as proof that Becker's was the reckless and indomitable will behind the murder of Herman Rosenthal.

The charge to the jury was begun by Justice Goff at 10:30 o'clock this morning, and shortly before noon the jury retired to make up their minds whether Becker was the master or the victim of murderers.

DIAZ REVOLUTION WAS SHORT LIVED

Madero's Troops Take Old President's Nephew.

Washington, Oct. 24.—General Felix Diaz's defeat and capture by Mexican federal forces near Vera Cruz officially has been reported to Washington. Both Consul Canada and Commander Hughes of the Des Moines cabled the news of the federal victory. Ditz's defeat is taken here to mean the collapse of the entire revolutionary movement which centered in him.

Commander Hughes reported that the federal forces had taken possession of the city of Vera Cruz. There was much fighting for five or six hours within the city limits. Medical officers and assistants have been sent out through the city by Commander Hughes to give such assistance as might be possible. The naval officer stated that definite and reliable information regarding the situation was almost unobtainable. Consul Canada made essentially the same report, adding that Diaz, his staff and most of his men had been captured and disarmed.

The news was a great surprise to officials of the state department and officers of the army and navy stationed at the departments. From the very first General Diaz had been picked to win.

The general opinion here is that the defeat of General Diaz is likely to mark the turning point in Mexico and prove a great setback to Zapata, Orozco, Salazar and other rebels now in the field against the Madero government. The manner in which the Madero government has made good on its claim that Diaz would be crushed, is expected greatly to enhance the prestige of the entire administration, both at home and abroad.

Diaz to Be Executed.

City of Mexico, Oct. 24.—General Felix Diaz, Colonel Diaz Ordaz and all the officers of the rebellious troops and marines will be haled immediately before a court-martial and doubtless will suffer the death penalty. Orders have been issued for the convening of the court, which will be presided over by General Beltran. General Diaz, although not now a member of the army, is amenable in such court under the law which provides for such trial of any civilian under like circumstances. The soldiers of the rebellious troops will be decimated—one in ten being executed. They will be chosen by lot to pay the penalty for all.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

The waiters and cooks in three of Washington's big hotels and in several restaurants are on strike.

William J. Bryan will soon begin the erection of a home at a cost of $100,000 on his 200-acre farm at Mission, Tex.

The plant of the Energit Explosive company at Hailbury, Ont., was blown up and eight persons were killed instantly.

Regulations looking to the better safeguarding of the navy submarines and the men who operate them have been issued at the navy department.

An unsuccessful attempt to burn the grandstand at the famous Epsom race course has been discovered. It is believed that the suffragettes are responsible.

The Rev. Jabez Ford, aged seventy-one, of Camden, N. Y., dropped dead at the New York state Baptist convention in session at Utica. Mr. Ford had just concluded a spirited address to the delegates when he was stricken.

In the bout between Billy Papke of America and Georges Carpentier of France, at Paris, for the middleweight championship of the world, Carpentier abandoned the fight after the seventeenth round, during which his eyes were filled with blood and he was unable to see his opponent.

THE FIREWORKS TO BEGIN LATER

Preliminary Inquiry Into the Harvester Trust.

MORGAN COMPANY FARED WELL

Inquiry Among Bankers and Others Interested in the Organization of the International Harvester Company Reveals Profits Which Accrued to Promoting Company For Putting Gigantic Concern in Working Order.

New York, Oct. 24.—When the government suit to show that the International Harvester company is a combination violating the Sherman anti-trust law was shifted to New York city, seven witnesses were examined before Special Examiner R. S. Taylor. It was said that George W. Perkins, Cyrus H. McCormick, Charles Deering, George F. Baker, the McCormicks, Norman B. Ream, E. H. Gary, and the other well-known capitalists mentioned in the bill will not become witnesses at all. According to Edwin P. Grosvenor, special assistant attorney general in charge of the prosecution, there is to be no chance taken in the way of immunity baths, as in the beef trust cases.

The initial proceedings were described as dummy day, in that the witnesses principally were bankers, brokers and lawyers' clerks, whose names appeared as the incorporators of the harvester company in 1902, some of whom were officers and directors of the company overnight between Aug. 12 and Aug. 13. From other witnesses, however, it was established that:

J. P. Morgan & Co. were allotted $13,500,000 worth of stock for organizing the $120,000,000 company, out of which it was said that $10,000,000 had to be deducted for the promoting company's expenses, leaving them a net profit of $3,500,000.

Another witness who owned an independent company for a year or two, also revealed on the stand that he knew very little about it, even to the extent of not remembering exactly where he got $945,000 to buy out the independent. He went abroad soon after that and did not know an officer or director of the company he was supposed to own.

The suit was brought by the government April 30 of this year, and this is the third hearing, one having been held in Minneapolis and one in Chicago. The hearing will return to Chicago tonight. The proceedings here were mostly calm, not an objection being raised, nor a cross word exchanged. The work was preliminary. The fireworks will start up later, it is said.

HASN'T A FRIEND

Even Jack Johnson's Own Brother Turns Against Him.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Charles Johnson, brother of Jack, for some time occupied the attention of the federal grand jury, which is investigating white slave charges in connection with the case of the negro pugilist. He went into the jury room overjoyed at the opportunity to testify against his brother.

"It is the hand of God," he said as he entered the room. "The Lord has taken this fellow in hand and is directing justice at him."

The witness is said to have told the grand jury much of importance in the federal investigation. Johnson was followed by Joseph Levy, secretary to the negro pugilist.

Lucille Cameron, the girl involved, will be recalled to complete her testimony before the grand jury. She is now with her mother at a hotel, guarded by a deputy United States marshal. Mrs. Cameron-Falconet, mother of the girl, says that complete reconciliation has been effected.

What Each Pupil Costs.

Indianapolis, Oct. 24.—In a statement of the conditions of Indiana schools by Charles A. Greathouse, state superintendent of public instruction, it is shown that the average cost to the state for each pupil enrolled in the commissioned high schools of the state for the school year of 1911-12 was $45.88. In township schools of that character the average cost for each pupil was $51.35, while it was $40.89 in the town schools and $46.39 in the city schools.

Murderer Made His Escape.

Rockport, Ind., Oct. 24.—No news has been received here regarding the whereabouts of Harley King of Grand View, who stabbed and killed Samuel Kahler, conductor of an interurban car, had separated King and C. E. Painter, when the former tried to attack Painter on a traction car. It is said King followed Kahler from the car into the traction office and stabbed him.

The Deadly Spiral Glide.

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 24.—Louis Mitchell, president of the American Aviators' association, while flying at the exposition grounds here, lost control of his machine at a height of 600 feet and was dashed to death. Mitchell was making a spiral glide when he lost control. Fully 7,000 persons saw the tragedy.

GENE STRATTON-PORTER.

Prominent Novelist Who Risks Life to Take Bird Pictures.

Rome City, Ind., Oct. 24.—Gene Stratton Porter, the Geneva writer and naturalist, has purchased land near here and is building a country home, which she will use as a studio.

HARD TO GET A LINE ON BALKAN SITUATION

All Sides Claim a Succession of Victories.

London, Oct. 24.—According to the dispatches which are being received here, a succession of victories is claimed by all sides in the Balkan conflict. Sofia, Belgrade and Athens all have highly colored reports of successes for their respective armies, and Constantinople hears that the Turks are winning all along the frontier. Only Montenegro appears to be uncertain of the result of the fighting of its armies.

The Servians send out the news that the town of Novibazar, capital of the sandjak in which Austria takes a keen interest, has fallen into the hands of the Servian army, and that a second force of their armies has taken or is about to take Keumanova. The reports from Servian sources agree that the town is surrounded, but disagree as to its actual capture. Pristina, Kocchana and Kratovo are other towns reported in these Belgrade dispatches to have been taken.

The Bulgarians, with Adrianople as their goal, are meeting with equal success, if credence is to be placed in Sofia as a source of information. The newspapers of the Bulgarian capital report many victories and say that the Bulgars have occupied all the Turkish positions between Tchilepo and Karlok. The last named is fourteen miles southwest of Adrianople. To the east of Adrianople another Bulgarian army, described as of huge size, is said to be ill-disciplined.

Greece claims victories at Ellason and at Serfidje. Athens dispatches use the word "annihilated" to describe the havoc wrought upon the Turks at the latter place. The Turks who resisted at Ellason are reported to be retreating hastily with the Greek army at their heels.

FINE PROGRESS

Colonel Roosevelt's Condition Shows Most Encouraging Improvement.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Oct. 24.—The important improvement shown by Colonel Roosevelt since he has found complete rest in the quiet of his own home is most reassuring. So much has he been strengthened that the strict injunction that he must see no one was modified to the extent of permitting him to have a short chat with Dr. Lyman Abbott and George W. Perkins. Dr. Abbott was the first visitor outside of the family admitted to the patient's sickroom since his return.

The attending physicians say that the colonel is distinctly better. His wound shows that the healthy healing processes are going on. If he continues to evidence the same steady improvement, it is but a matter of a few days before he will resume the direction of his campaign.

Saved Imperiled Crew.

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 24.—Daring use of the breeches buoy in the teeth of a thirty-mile southeast gale enabled members of four federal life-saving crews to rescue sixteen sailors, the entire crew of the Italian bark Catrina, bound from Montevideo to New York. The ship had been blown in among the shoals, two miles off Barnegat inlet, and seems to be doomed. The hard lashing of the waves has opened her seams and the crew fears she will go to pieces.

Expatriate Hoosiers to Meet.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Saturday evening a "speechless supper" will be given at the Hotel La Salle by the members of the Indiana Society of Chicago. Six hundred are expected to attend. The features of an unusual program have not been announced except as to the concluding number. This will be an exhibition of moving pictures to be explained by President Wilbur Nesbitt.

STATE LAUGHS AT THIS SUIT

Race Track Promoters Not Taken Seriously.

POWER OF THE MILITARY ARM

Officers in Attorney General's Office, Referring to Action to Enjoin Presence of Militia at Porter Racetrack, Declare That No Court Can Stop the Carrying Out of an Executive Act and That Troops Are There to Stay.

Indianapolis, Oct. 24.—"A court has about as much right to enjoin the governor of a state from using the militia as a justice of peace would have to enjoin a legislature from passing some law," said James E. McCullough, assistant attorney general, when he heard of the suit filed by the Porter racetrack promoters in which they seek to enjoin the governor, his secretary and national guard officers from using troops in stopping the races.

Mr. McCullough expressed the belief that the racetrack promoters will not succeed with their suit. He declared that no court can stop the carrying out of an executive act, and that the guardsmen will not be withdrawn from the Porter racetrack until the governor directs them to return home.

Brigadier General Charles A. Garrard, who is in Porter as representative of the state, telephoned Mark Thistlethwaite, secretary to Governor Marshall, that "all is well." He said that the day had passed without incident, so far as the troops are concerned.

"The troops will remain at Porter until the last horse has been taken from the grounds and we make certain that no more attempts will be made to continue the races," said Mr. Thistlethwaite.

INJUNCTION IS SOUGHT

Valparaiso, Ind., Oct. 24.—Attorneys for the Racing Foundation Corporation of America have applied to the circuit court for an injunction against Governor Thomas Marshall, Mark Thistlethwaite, his secretary, Adjutant General McCoy and Brigadier General Gerard of Indianapolis, Major Freyer-muth and Captain Guy Kimball of South Bend and Captain George Healey of Rensselaer, members of the Indiana national guard, to restrain them from interfering with races conducted under the auspices of the corporation and from a further occupancy of plaintiffs' grounds at Mineral Springs.

Judge McMahon decided that the proceedings should be heard by Judge Harry Tuthill of the superior court, who was appointed special judge in the original injunction proceedings brought by the state against the corporation and which are still pending. The application states that the plaintiffs own the grounds, which are being greatly damaged by the action of the state in taking possession and occupying them with troops, and that, further, the corporation under the Seller's law is permitted to hold fifteen-day race meets.

There have been no races at the track since the militia took charge of the grounds, and the few visitors who applied at the grounds were denied admission by the troops.

MADE A HIT

Negro Porter at Frankfort Scores Success With Musical Compositions.

Frankfort, Ind., Oct. 24.—John Berry, a negro, who has been employed at a barber shop here as a porter, has musical talent and a short time back wrote two sacred songs, a comic opera and a short story, sending them all to a Chicago company.

The company accepted his offerings and sent him a check for $3,000 for the comic opera, $200 each for two sacred songs and $67 for the story.

Berry was so delighted that he resigned his position, left for his home at Muncie, and will devote his entire time to writing music.

They Are Thoroughly Alarmed.

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 24.—The election and registration manipulators responsible for the frauds this year, which had their climax in placing more than 4,000 fictitious names on the registration lists, are thoroughly alarmed. Twenty-five more indictments have been returned against names of alleged voters who are not known at the addresses given in the registration lists. Andy Berkley, inspector of registration in the Taylorville precinct, is charged with corruptly listing 322 names.

Horse Thief Sentenced.

North Vernon, Ind., Oct. 24.—Charles Reed of Columbus, who a few weeks ago stole a horse and buggy from Burke's livery stable in this city, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to the state prison for from one to fourteen years.

Caught at the Crossing.

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 24.—A Big Four freight train struck a Thirteenth street car at the crossing, killing Conductor Homer Bevis, on duty as conductor for the first time, and injuring several passengers.

LODGES VOTE TO MARCH IN PARADE

Jesus Christ. The sermon in part was as follows:

"There are many things inspiring in this great audience tonight. I know what brings you out here in such great crowds. You would not come out night after night the way you do here to hear the biggest infidel on this side of hell rail at Jesus Christ and his gospel. You come because the human heart goes out after God, and you will never be satisfied till you know Him and rest in Him.

"Where now there is cursing and profanity there will be reverence for your mother's God and respect for the name of Christ. If He comes in He will not only save your soul and keep it out of hell when you die, but He'll put a new meaning on the life you're living now and use it to keep some other soul out of hell.

"In one way or another the Son of God will never cease to knock at the door of your life you will let Him in, or until you grieve Him forever away and then you'll never hear Him knock again.

"1. He knocks by the very presence of Christianity and Christian institutions in the world. You can't think for one minute of the humble rise of the religion of Jesus Christ and its steady progress around the world in the face of the most bitter and awful opposition that hell has ever hurled against any creed the world has ever known until it girdles the world today and is the recognized religion of every civilized nation on the face of the earth. I say, you can't think of this for one single minute without at the same time stopping to think of its claims upon your own soul.

"Caesar tried to burn it out; Julian tried to argue it out; Celsus tried to laugh it out; Porphyry tried to sneer it out; unfaithful priests tried to sell it out; a whole tribe of infidels, from Voltaire to Ingelsol have tried to curse it out, have fought it and spit their venom at it, but it stands today mightier than a million Gibraltars with science, philosophy, and the brains of the world worshipping at its shrine.

"2. He knocks by the power of a Consistent Christian Life.

"I tell you, Christian people, the world's got its eye on us, and somebody has rightly said that the world's got an eagle's eye for anything that's inconsistent in the life of a Christian.

"Now, my friends, I'm perfectly willing to admit that we've got some pretty near sticks in the church, and we can't do anything with them, but we got them all from your side, and don't you think it's rather mean after palming off that sort of material on us to blame us for having it?

"But, on the other hand, there are thousands of real good Christians, and you know them to be genuine and true, and their saintly, Godly lives have inspired you. If I could find no other example for many of you, I could take the life of your saintly, Godly mother, and that would be enough for you.

"A good for nothing, red nosed beer quizzler was cursing the church one day, and, referring to church members, said, 'The whole crowd's a set of hypocrites,' and I said, 'Well, then your mother's one, for she's a member,' and then he shut up.

"Hear me, your mother may be in the skies tonight, but whatever else you've doubted, you never doubted the sincerity of your mother's faith; and whatever else you've criticized, you had only words of praise for your mother's life. And yet I suppose that even she made mistakes.

"3. He knocks by means of misfortune and affliction. There are lots of people in heaven tonight because their hearts were broken on earth. God has to come to some people and bring to naught their plans and let them stand with broken idols in their hands. He has to take away their store, and take away their health and send bereavement before they will think of God and let Him have the proper place in their lives.

"4. He knocks in the great danger moments of life. Just as long as you can clip your coupons and run your automobile and have red corpuscles in your blood, you give God the go by, but when the devils got you in troubles, then you ask God to get you out and promise God to obey Him. It's contemptible to treat God like that; there's not one scintilla of manhood or one spark of womanhood about it. But listen! I can tell you something a good deal worse, and that is to make a promise to God in a time like that and then be cowardly enough to forget it when the danger is over.

"When people don't like my preaching down there they get up and go out. But there will be a meeting up there, and where you'll have to stay through until God tells you to go, and then you'll have to go to the right or left, just as God says. Man, don't be unreasonable, and stubborn, and insane tonight. Let Christ save you tonight. If you will, Christ will.

"If you could prove this was your last night on earth, and this message was your funeral sermon, you'd be a whole lot more concerned about this matter than some of you are now.

titled to have one judge, one clerk and one sheriff on every board.

There has never been a serious controversy over the manner in which an election was conducted in any precinct in Rush county, and it is believed there will be none this year. The Rush county elections have always been in the hands of a capable and adequate election commission, and this has probably had much to do with keeping down controversies.

Clerk Norris and Messrs Thomas and Barrett are old hands at managing elections, all having served as commissioners before. They are not needlessly technical or exacting, but they insist on the election supplies being distributed, the vote being cast, enrolled and counted, and the returns being canvassed strictly in conformity to the election law.

The three commissioners, and the clerks they will select to assist them will organize themselves into a returning board on the evening of election day and will be in session in the circuit court room from that time on until the vote for the entire county has been officially returned and tabulated and the result declared. The three commissioners will be in session at the clerk's office throughout election day to provide for any emergencies that may arise.

Alleged Irregularity in Filing Certificate of Nomination For One Candidate Causes It.

TICKETS CAN'T BE ARRANGED

State Election Commission Will be Consulted as to Law—Going After State Ballots.

Because the filing of the certificates of nomination of one candidate of one party which will be on the county ballot is believed to be irregular, the arrangement of the tickets on the ballot has not been made by the Rush county election commission which expected to perform that task last night and prepare the copy for the regular and sample ballots to be delivered to the printer.

The location of the tickets on the ballot will probably not be determined until tomorrow night when the election commission will meet again. Tomorrow Deputy Clerk Birney Spradling, who by virtue of the clerkship, is a member of the election commission, will go to Indianapolis to get Rush county's apportionment of State ballots for the election. At that time he will consult the State election commission concerning the alleged irregularity in certificate filing here and the commission here will be directed in its course by the advice of the State commission as to the law in the case.

The printing of the county ballots will be done at the Republican Company's plant under the supervision of the county commission. The present plan is for the county chairman of the Republican and Democratic parties to appoint watchers for their parties during the printing of the ballots. This has been the custom in this county, while in some other counties the election commission does its own watching. The members of the election commission have no time away from their business, and regularly appointed watchers will serve the purpose as well.

The ballots will be delivered at the county clerk's office one day early next week and will then be apportioned among the precincts, according to their respective votes. The ballots for each precinct will be counted and sealed and then locked up until Saturday, November 2, when they will be delivered to the inspectors.

The county ballots will contain five tickets—Republican, Democratic, Prohibition, Progressive and Socialist. No information has been received as to how many tickets the state ballots will contain, but it is known that they will contain at least five. When they are procured tomorrow, the State ballots will be locked up until the commissioners are ready to count, apportion and seal them, which will be at the same time that they make up the county ballots into precinct packages.

With the election only two weeks away, the county organizations of both the Republicans and Democrats are at work arranging the details for election boards, particularly as regards the selection of men to serve on them. The election inspectors are selected by the county commissioners, but the other board members are chosen by the organizations of the two dominant parties, each being en-

The first real ice of the fall was seen here this morning. The temperature fell to the lowest point last night it has thus far this season. It is said that all crops which would have been affected are out of danger.

RETAINS COUNSEL TO PROTECT SELF

Edward Lingenfelder, Alias "Sloan," Goes to Indianapolis to Testify in Bigamy Case.

LAWYERS ACCOMPANY HIM

Edward Lingenfelder, who has been passing under the cognomen of Edward Sloan during his few years' residence here, went to Indianapolis this morning with his attorneys, Smith, Cambern & Smith, to appear as a witness in the bigamy charge which has been preferred there in police court against George Isaacs, who married Sloan's first wife before she or he either one had a divorce from their first mates.

Isaacs is held under $2000 bond, and his trial was set for today. The three-cornered case of bigamy was revealed when Lola Isaacs of Columbus, O., first wife of Isaacs, brought suit for divorce to come into possession of some money and it was learned Isaacs had married Sloan's first wife without either having obtained legal separation.

Sloan maintains that he heard his first wife was married again and naturally supposed that she had obtained a divorce. In addition to the local legal firm, he has employed Indianapolis lawyers to look after his interests.

PHYSICIANS IN SESSION HERE

Meeting of Union District Medical Association Attended by Forty Visiting Doctors.

TURKEY DINNER A FEATURE

Program Included Addresses by Prominent Men—Closes With Election of Officers.

The eighty-eighth semiannual meeting of the Union District Medical Association, which was held here today was attended by about thirty-five visiting physicians.

One of the features of the day's meeting was the dinner served at one o'clock at the Scanlan House. The dinner was served by the Rush county branch of the society. Forty-five physicians set down to the big turkey dinner.

The business sessions were held in the commissioners room in the court house. The morning session was late in beginning on account of the late arrival of some of the doctors from the Ohio counties in the district.

The Union Medical Association is one of the oldest in this section of the State and the meeting today was one of the most successful. The business this afternoon included the election of officers and the selecting of the next meeting place. The last meeting was held in Liberty.

Following the opening address of the president, P. M. Sater of Hamilton, Ohio, Dr. Herman H. Honpe gave an instructive and interesting talk on "The Diagnosis and Treatment of Hysteria." The only local man on the program was Dr. S. S. Woodcock of Milroy who discussed "Chronic Appendicitis."

TWO ACCIDENTS IN ONE HOUSEHOLD

Mrs. Joe Wolf Cuts Toe With Ax and George Keith Severs Vein With Putty Knife.

REQUIRE SEVERAL STITCHES

Mrs. Joe Wolf sustained a severe cut on the large toe of the right foot while cutting wood at her home in West Fourth street. The ax slipped and laid the toe open back to the joint. Four stitches were required.

The second accident occurred in the same household yesterday when George Keith, a boarder at the Wolf home cut a vein in his right arm on a putty knife. Keith was carrying the knife in his pocket with the blade pointing upward and when he reached in his pocket sustained a badly cut arm. Two stitches were required to close the wound. Dr. W. C. Smith dressed both injuries.

GOES TO JURY.

Columbus Republican: The case of Fred Wolf, administrator of the estate of the late Burney Wolf, against the Big Four, for $10,000 damages, which has been on trial here for several days, went to the jury just before noon today.

DENOMINATION OF BONDS LESS

Postoffice Department Announces it Will Issue $20 Bonds Until December Second.

TO SAVING BANK DEPOSITORS

Under old System $100 One Was Smallest One—Advantage to Small Holder.

Postmaster Charles Frazee has received from the department at Washington a bulletin to the effect that by applying on or before December 2, next, all depositors of the postal savings system may exchange the whole or a part of their deposits for United States registered or coupon bonds in denominations of $20, $100 and $500, bearing interest from January 1, 1913, at a rate of 2½ per cent annually, payable in semi-annual installments. These bonds are redeemable at the pleasure of the United States one year from the date of issue. They are exempt from taxation in any form.

Applications for the conversion of deposits into bonds on January 1, 1913, must be received on or before December 2, 1912, by the postmaster at the depository office where the certificates were issued. The postmaster will supply an application form, which must be made out in triplicate. The depositor must indorse and surrender with his application postal savings certificates covering the amount of the bonds desired for which the postmaster will give him a receipt. The bonds will be issued by the Secretary of the Treasury, and as soon as they are ready will be delivered to the applicants.

The conversion of deposits into bonds at a date less than one year after the certificates began to bear interest forfeits interest on the deposits as in the case of withdrawal for any other purpose.

Postal savings deposits converted into bonds are not counted as a part of the maximum of $500 allowed one depositor, and there is no limitation on the amount of available postal savings bonds which may be acquired finally by a depositor. The exchange is considered as taking effect on January 1, and a depositor who has applied to convert into bonds all or part of the maximum balance of $500 may deposit an additional amount in January, though the bonds may not yet have been delivered.

Under the regulations of the Treasury Department a minor can not assign registered bonds without the consent of a duly appointed guardian or trustee, evidence of whose authority must be submitted. A minor has the right to convert his postal savings certificates into registered bonds, but if he should desire to assign the bonds during his minority he must comply with this regulation. This difficulty does not exist in the case of coupon bonds, which are transferred by mere delivery.

Interest on registered bonds is paid by checks drawn at the Treasury Department in favor of the registered holder. These checks are sent by mail to the postoffice address of the holder, and the holder of a registered bond should notify the Secretary of the Treasury (Division of Loans and Currency) of any change in his postoffice address at least 15 days before the interest falls due.

Payment on registered bonds that

TRY TO ROB SCANLAN HOUSE

Thieves Enter Kitchen But Are Not Successful.

If a couple of thieves had been successful last night, the physicians in attendance at the Union Medical Association meeting would not have had turkey at the Scanlan House today for dinner. The two men were found in the kitchen by the clerk and Mrs. McAllister. They had searched the ice-box and Chief McAllister is positive they were after the turkeys. The police chased the two men but failed to catch them.

KNOT ON LOG SAVED AGED MAN'S LIFE

Cash Patterson, of Manila, Seriously Injured, Perhaps Fatally, When Skids Twist in Loading.

HIPS AND SPINE CRUSHED

Cassius Patterson, a well-known resident of Manila, narrowly missed death in an accident at that place yesterday while he and a number of men were loading logs on a Pennsylvania car. He was crushed between two logs and his injuries are of such a serious nature that he will probably be confined to his bed for weeks. They may become dangerous at any time, at it is feared he is internally injured. He was crushed about the hips and his spine is seriously affected.

But for a big knot on one of the logs, Patterson would undoubtedly have been killed. The knot served to hold the logs apart a few inches and these inches meant life to the victim of the accident.

The logs that caused the trouble were four feet in diameter and twelve feet long. The men had it half way up the skids to the car when one of the skids twisted. The log was chocked to prevent further slipping and Mr. Patterson, who started to go under it, was warned to be more careful. The warning came too late, for the big log came rolling toward the ground in such a way that he was caught between it and another log, the latter being the one bearing the knot that saved his life. The injured man is under the care of Dr. W. E. Barnum.

LODGES VOTE TO MARCH IN PARADE

Several Organizations Come Forward and Agree to Appear in Religious Pageant Saturday

REVIVAL PROGRESSING FAST

Dr. Biedervolf Tells of the Endurance of Christianity and Gives Three Reasons For It.

Church bells will ring tomorrow morning at nine o'clock for three minutes, calling the people of Rushville to prayer.

Many organizations are coming to the front and agreeing to march in a body in the big demonstration which will be held Saturday night by the religious forces of the city in connection with the tabernacle meeting.

Last night the Odd Fellows voted to appear in the parade in a body. They will meet at their lodge hall the night of the parade and form. The Red Men voted to allow the members to do as they please which signifies that the lodge will be represented as a lodge in the pageant. The Knights of Pythias have already voted to march and are requested to meet at the hall at 7:15 to form for the parade.

The young business men were entertained at lunch again today, and tomorrow at noon the business girls will be the guests. The meal will be served by the Methodist and Christian church women. All business girls are invited to come at eleven or twelve o'clock.

Some special music will be provided tonight at the regular services at the tabernacle.

Dr. Biedervolf delivered a great exposition of the Gospel of Jesus Christ last night in the sermon, "Behold, I Stand at the Door and Knock." He gave three reasons why Christianity will endure through the ages until the Judgement Day. He said the Rock of Gibraltar and the pyramids of Egypt would fall some day, but never the religion of Hallowe'en, more commonly known by its slightly contracted name, Hallowe'en, is the zigel of Hallowe'en, or All Saints Day. By the superstitions it is believed to be the night when ghosts stalk abroad throughout the land, making merry in their great release and happy celebration upon the festive occasion.

Although oftentimes neglected in modern practice the most essential part of the old-time Hallowe'en ritual, it seems, consisted in the lighting by each household, of a bon-fire at nightfall. This custom pointed to the

HIS COMMUNES ALL FAILED

Career of Jacques Etienne Normand, Who Started Saint Simonist Colonies in Texas.

Seventy years ago a French settlement was made at Reunion, Tex., by a group of disciples of the social reform proposed by Saint Simon. The moving spirit of the colony was Jacques Etienne Normand. Adopting the theories of the Saint Simonists, Normand associated himself with Jean Reybaud. Disagreements arose and Normand assumed independent leadership of a faction; in the revolution of 1848 he sought permission to organize a community of his followers in Picardy. When Louis Napoleon became prince-president he promptly expelled Normand from France. In 1851 Normand found his way to Texas and joined forces with Victor Considérant, also expelled from France. Normand was abundantly supplied with funds and bought 2,000 acres near San Antonio, on which he established the commune of La Reunion. The morals of the community were not above reproach, even in a border community, and Considerant urged that communism should extend to the community of women, who were said to be no better than they should be, hence Texas expelled them all. In 1857 Normand endeavored to establish a commune near El Paso and in 1861 he renewed the attempt at La Reunion. For the last attempt he was sent to prison for five years. He died in San Antonio in 1867.

REAL SCORE NOT KNOWN BY FANS

So Rotten Was Game in Richmond

That People Lost Out on The Final Count.

FIST FIGHT FEATURED FARCE

Wallace, Tormented by Taunts of

Cook, Promised Bout After Contest—Were Easy for Locals.

The ball game in Richmond Sunday, which Rushville won 10 to 1, was so rotten that the fans there didn't even know the right score. The Richmond team had no score book and lost count, so often did Rushville score.

The following from the Richmond item will be of interest here:

A boxing contest was added to the benefit baseball exhibition at Athletic park Sunday afternoon and while the baseball game was devoid of interest the mill between Catcher Boll of the local club and Pitcher "Chick" Avery of the Rushville nine, served to drive away about 200 disgusted fans and hold the same number in anticipation of a threatened bout between Second Baseman Cook of Rushville, and Pitcher "Huck" Wallace of the local club developing at the conclusion of the ball game. None seem to know what the score of the game was, but approximates as made by the fans were all the way from 9 to 2 to 11 to 3 in favor of the Rushville club.

With Boll up in the sixth inning Avery tossed up a fast one which "beamed" the local man. The ball did not strike with its full force, but instead a glancing blow. However, it stung, and Boll, swinging his bat, preceded to the pitcher's box, dropped the bat and swung rapidly with his left and right, one of the blows grazing Avery's chin, as the latter backed away, expostulating that he had not intended to hit the Richmond player. The fight was broken up by players on the two clubs. Later in the game Boll apologized to Avery. No arrests were made.

Earlier in the contest, "Huck" Wallace, who is here wintering after a successful season in the southwest which was earned him a trial with the Philadelphia Nationals, was tormented by the taunts of Second Baseman Cook of Rushville. Cook was coaching at third base and raising Wallace with cries of "Oh, you National leaguer." The pitcher walked over to the coacher and an exchange of words, promised he would see Cook after the game. The two did not meet. When Cook came to bat later in the game, Wallace threw a hard one which caught Cook on the elbow.

The baseball game was so rotten that the fans became disgusted very early in the game. Rushville hit Wallace hard in the first inning, but the pitcher would have pulled through probably had not errors by his team mates been so frequent.

Geo. T. Craddock, Rubie, Ark., says: "I was bothered with lumbago for seven years so I could not work. I tried several kinds of kidney medicine which gave me little or no relief. Two bottles of Foley Kidney Pills cured me and now I can do any kind of work. I cheerfully recommend them to my friends." F. B. Johnson & Co.

CRABS NOW GETTING SCARCE

Maryland Expert Says Crustaceans Are Doomed to Fate of Terrapin Unless Conserved.

If protective measures are not adopted and enforced the hard and soft shell crabs, which have been abundant in the Chesapeake bay and its tributaries, will meet the fate which has overtaken the terrapin, which awaits canvasback ducks and which at times has threatened the oyster.

This declaration was made by Swenson Earle, topographical engineer of the shellfish commission, who has made a study of the crabbing industry and who was delegated by the late Gov. Crothers to suggest remedial legislation, asserts the Washington Star. A bill was prepared meeting Mr. Earle's views and was submitted to the last Maryland legislature, but it got tangled up with the opposing oyster bills and never emerged from the pigeonhole of the committee on Chesapeake bay and tributaries.

"The best evidence of the scarcity of crabs is afforded by prices at Crisfield, the main shipping point," continued Mr. Earle. "Prices for soft shell crabs has been as high as $1.25 a dozen at Crisfield during the season, though there was a decline the last few days. Only a few years ago soft shell crabs at Crisfield sold as low as 25 and 50 cents a dozen. In the waters of Anne Arundel county only a few years ago a man could easily catch four barrels of hard crabs in one day. He is fortunate now if he can catch one barrel a day."

Crisfield as a shipping point (the most extensive in the world for crabs) shipped in 1910, estimated, 120,000,000 soft crabs.

It is believed by most watermen that the crab, like the diamondback terrapin, which was once so numerous in this state that the slaves objected to being fed on them more often than once a week, is not beyond extermination.

Mrs. Peter Holan, 11501 Buckeye Rd, Cleveland, O., says: "Yes, indeed I can recommend Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. My little boy had a bad case of whooping cough, some times he was blue in the face. I gave him Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, and it had a remarkable effect and cured him in a short time." Contains no harmful drugs. F. B. Johnson & Co.

Semi-Annual Occasion Will be Celebrated in Public Schools

FOREWORD IN THE PAMPHLET

State Superintendent Issues Program to be Observed by Children—Plant Something.

Charles A. Greathouse, state superintendent of public instruction, has received from the state printer the final proofs for a pamphlet containing the program for Arbor and Bird day, October 25. The day is to be celebrated by all the schools of the state, in an effort to promote ideas of tree and bird conservation in the children of Indiana.

The October date is the second Arbor and Bird day of the present year, the spring day being celebrated April 26. In a foreword to the pamphlet the state official said: "October 25 has been set aside for the rendering of such service in the state of Indiana, and I am asking you, the children of this commonwealth, to assist in all the ways you can."

"Will you not plant a seed, a shrub, a flower, a tree?"

"Will you not help to make clean the alleys and streets, the grounds about your home and your school?"

"Will you not encourage your companions to join you in this work?"

"Will you not promise yourself that you will never in the future heedlessly mow or destroy useful plants and trees; that you will work to preserve every living thing?"

"By the avowed and careful observance of such principles you will not only add to the beauty of our own fair state of Indiana, but you will contribute to the prosperity of the great republic."

Included in the pamphlet are numerous suggested programs and material for programs, all based on the conservation topics. Mr. Greathouse will send the pamphlets to all school officials of the state.

SIGNIFICANT RULING IN DYNAMITE CASE

Court Says Conspiracy Already Has Been Shown.

Indianapolis, Oct. 24.—In the dynamiting trial Miss Mary Dye, former stenographer for John J. McNamara, one time secretary of the iron workers' union and confessed dynamiter, was subjected to a rigid cross-examination and though many rapid-fire questions were hurled at her, she stood the ordeal well. She identified letter after letter when the signature was concealed, and only once made the mistake of attributing the writing to a person whose name was not signed. The defense made but one point out of her testimony, and that was that President Ryan of the iron workers always signed checks in blanks before leaving for a trip and that these were filled in by McNamara. It developed that J. J. McNamara used the alias George J. Clark, and that he had stationery made expressly for this purpose.

Judge Anderson surprised the defense when, in overruling an objection to evidence offered by the government, he declared that a conspiracy had already been proved in the case, this being when McNamara and Edward Clark pleaded guilty. The defense objected to the introduction of evidence showing that property had been destroyed by dynamite, holding that the government could investigate only in respect to violation of United States laws. The objection was overruled.

J. A. Scott, a farmer from near Youngstown, O., former iron worker, testified he was besieged by numerous defendants to quit "scabbing" while employed on the Von Spreckelsen job of erecting Murat Temple in this city in the fall of 1909.

"You're doing wrong working as a scab here," said Charles W. Wachmeister of Detroit, defendant, to Scott, according to the latter.

"You had better take your damned gang and dig out or the whole business will be blown up. You'll find a union card the cheapest piece of furniture you ever had."

Indictment Against Gibson.

Middletown, N. Y., Oct. 24.—Burton W. Gibson, the New York lawyer, was indicted by the Orange county grand jury on a charge of murder in the first degree. He is accused of killing his client, Mrs. Rosa Meschik Szabo.

J. G. Criswell, a painter living at 540 North Mulberry St., Hagerstown, Md., states: "I had kidney trouble with a severe pain across my back, and could hardly get up after sitting down. I took Foley Kidney Pills and soon found the pain left my back. I could get up and down with ease, and the bladder action was more regular and normal." Try them at F. B. Johnson & Co. Mrs. T. A. Town, 107 6th street, Watertown, S. D., writes: "My four children are subject to hard colds and I always use Foley's Honey and Tar Compound with splendid results. Some time ago I had a severe attack of la grippe and the doctor prescribed Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and it soon overcame the la grippe. ## THE PANICS OF 1893 AND 1907

FACT IS CLEARLY SHOWN

The Financial Disturbance of Five Years Ago Not Due to Adverse Republican Legislation Nor to Any Cause for Which the Republican Party Must Answer.

With an audacity which can only be explained by the desperate situation which makes a resort to even the most improbable of theories a political necessity, the Democratic campaign text book charges the Republican party with responsibility for the panic of 1893 and the hard times that ensued. "The Republicans have been trying to make the country believe," says the text book, "that the panic of 1893 was brought about by the Democratic bill which was passed in 1894." And then the text book writer proceeds to make merry over the absurdity of charging an effect in one year to a cause that did not transpire until the year after.

Well, here are the facts: The last year of the Harrison administration, 1892, was the most prosperous the country had enjoyed up to that time. Labor was fully employed, capital was actively seeking investment, and the farmers were getting a good price for a big crop. So far as industrial and commercial conditions were concerned, there was not a cloud in the sky. Republican speakers and newspapers tried to persuade the people that they should let well enough alone and that Democratic success might bring disaster. But they would not listen. The prices of some things were pretty high. The Democrats declared it was because of the high tariff and promised that if put into power they would revise the tariff "in the interest of the plain people." There was little expectation throughout the country that Harrison would be defeated, and business boomed right up to election day. But Harrison was defeated.

How the Panic Came.

And then what happened? Why, instantly, men who had money which they were about to invest locked it up in the vaults and said "We will just wait a while to see what happens." Manufacturers engaged in producing protected articles, realizing that as soon as the Democratic congress could get at it their protection would be reduced, immediately began to cut their output to current demands. Who could blame them for refusing to go ahead and pile their warehouses full of goods which might have to be sold in competition with similar products made in countries where the factory wage scale was one-half or one-fourth of the factory wage scale which they had been paying? Jobbers and wholesalers cut their orders to the manufacturers in the same way and for the same reason. Retailers all over the country bought their supplies from day to day, fearing to be caught with high-priced goods when the low-priced flood came.

And so it happened that although the Wilson bill was not actually passed until late in 1894 the panic began the day after the election in 1892. It was not what the Democratic president and congress had done, but what everybody knew they intended to do that wrought the havoc. Indeed, if the Wilson bill could have been passed the day Cleveland was inaugurated the damage to the country would have been far less than that which actually occurred.

The Danger of Uncertainty.

This country is big enough and rich enough and resourceful enough to adjust itself to nearly any tariff law, no matter how bad it may be, if it only knows what it is. But during all the long months of debate over the bill the business of the country was, as it were, hung up in the air. If men had known that the duty on articles in which they were interested was to be reduced ten per cent. they could have figured accordingly. If they had known the duty was to be reduced 50 per cent. or 100 per cent. they would have had some basis upon which to adjust themselves. But they did not know what the reduction would be, so they had absolutely no basis upon which to do their figuring. They simply had to wait and wait and wait, keeping just as close to shore as they possibly could until the long agony was over. That is the analysis of the panic from 1893 to 1897, and no matter how vigorously the Democratic text book may dispute it, it cannot deny or refute it.

Two Kinds of Panics.

There is some reason, of course, why the unthinking should charge the responsibility for the panic of 1907 upon the Republican party, because that party was in power when the panic occurred. But it is to be remembered that there are two kinds of panics, one due to loss of confidence in measures and the other due to loss of confidence in men. A political party is justly chargeable with a business disturbance due to bad measures or the fear of bad measures; but it is not chargeable with responsibility for a disturbance brought about by the conduct of men. It was the fear of injurious legislation that brought upon the country the disaster of 1893-7. And therefore these disasters are chargeable to the Democratic party. But the money stringency of 1907 was due absolutely to the frenzied financing of a group of men operating entirely outside of politics and having no connection whatever with the government. It was nowhere charged that the panic of 1907 was brought about either by legislation which the Republican party had enacted or that it was threatening to pass. Neither then nor at any time since then has any Republican measure been charged with having brought it about, and the only new legislation which was demanded as the outcome of it was the emergency currency law, the need of which had never before been demonstrated so plainly, and which was promptly passed.

These are the facts in relation to the panics of 1893-7 and of 1907. That Democratic legislation was directly responsible for the former cannot be successfully denied. That Republican legislation was responsible, directly or indirectly, for the latter can not be successfully maintained.

WHY ROOSEVELT BOLTED.

From the Clay Center, Kan., Republican. Taft was fairly nominated by the Republican national convention at Chicago and is the rightful nominee of his party. Had Roosevelt been the nominee, it would have been the duty of Republicans who affiliate with the party to support him. Taft stands in that same relation and logically should command the support of all who claim to be Republicans. Roosevelt bolted his party; not because Taft was not the rightful nominee, but because of disappointed ambition and bitter desire for revenge because of his failure to get the nomination.

A bolter and ingrate and a traitor are synonymous terms in his case and the people will see to it that he is properly punished for his treachery. No traitor ever succeeded in accomplishing his ends.

History has never recorded an instance where a traitor did not meet his just deserts. It will be the same with Roosevelt.

Out of the Honest Class.

From the Salt Lake Tribune. Governor Johnson's characterization of President Taft as "the most humiliating character in American history," is a fair example of unbridled license of speech gone mad. Johnson's attempt to steal the Republican organization in California and disfranchise Taft voters, puts him out of the class of honest men who are entitled to respect.

Necessary in Case of Walter Sharp of Milroy, Injured Monday.

Walter Sharp, of Milroy, who was injured in the Hillis machine shop in Milroy Monday, as detailed in the Daily Republican of Monday, yesterday underwent an operation at the Deaconess hospital in Indianapolis to relieve him of pain and suffering. The operation was performed by Dr. J. H. Ford, chief surgeon of the Big Four railroad company, who was assisted by Dr. Hume of Milroy. The surgeons found that the lower part of the ulna was fractured and that several of the small bones of the wrist had been dislocated when the engine in back-firing pulled the victim's arm into a belt and pulley. They now predict that he will recover.

have been lost or stolen may be stopped by notifying the Secretary of the Treasury at Washington. If coupon bonds are lost the government does not undertake to protect the owner against the wrongful holder, but recognizes the bearer only. The owner has recourse only to such means as he could use to recover any other valuable property. When bonds, either registered or coupon, have been destroyed wholly or in part, or defaced, a claim may be filed with the Secretary of the Treasury under certain prescribed conditions for their replacement. Such claims will not be allowed for coupons which have been detached from coupon bonds.

Postal savings bonds can be procured only by the conversion of postal savings deposits and will not be issued to persons who are not depositors. They may be sold or assigned to any person, however, by the holder, and when a registered bond is assigned a new bond will be issued in the name of the owner. They are assignable in the manner in which other bonds are assigned.

The depositor's application must indicate whether bonds are desired in registered or coupon form. Coupon bonds are preferable for a depositor who intends to hold them for a short time only and who has ample facilities for their safe keeping. These bonds are payable to bearer, and the title will pass by delivery without indorsement. Interest on coupon bonds is collected by means of interest coupons, which are detached by the holder as they become due.

very ancient and widely diffused practice of kindling sacred fires at certain times of the year.

While the Germanic nations were having their Osterfeuer and Johannesfeuer the Celtic countries had their Bealtine (or Beltine) and Samhtheim the former on the eve of May 1 and the latter on the eve of November 1. It is very probable that the winter, as well as the summer festival was regarded from the beginning as a season at which the fairies were both unusually active and unusually propitious. There is, however, no evidence to show that the methods of divination at present resorted to, although of great antiquity, were originally regarded as limited in their efficacy to any one day.

Beltane, the name of the festival of the Celtic people, is a compound of the Celtic words beal, meaning the god of fire, and toine, meaning light. It was customary practice of the ancient Caledonians to kindle, at very close proximity, two fires, between which men and cattle were driven, the belief being held that health was thereby promoted and disease warded off.

While we live in an age beyond that of superstition we all enjoy a certain delight when we read or hear told the stories of ghosts, witches, and fairies, and who is there who does not, even if he does not take part actively, enjoy seeing the boys and girls dressed up in their ghostly appearing, fairy-like costumes, making merry as they run rampant, doing their playful pranks in imitation of the once superstitious ideas of our far remote ancestors of the Teutonic lands and British Isles, when the name America was a yet uncoined word?

In years past this eve has always been fittingly observed by the people of Rushville and many preparations are, doubtless, now being made in this city for its celebration, that this mind-haunting time, with its ever-present feeling, a queer association of curiosity and delight, may not, in any measure, be neglected and that we may return and live each year, a few hours, in our imagination, the happy, hardy life of the centuries long past.

Generally Condemned.

The attempt on the part of Col. Roosevelt and Senator Dixon, his campaign manager, to make political capital out of the attack upon the Colonel in Milwaukee, has aroused universal condemnation.

The statement of John Schrank, the man who did the shooting, shows that he was not influenced in the slightest degree by anything that has happened in this campaign, except Roosevelt's desire to be elected a third-term President. The following is a verbatim extract from Schrank's confession:

Q. Well, what object did you have in following around and trying to meet Theodore Roosevelt? A. Well, because I have been reading history and following up history and I have seen that this man Roosevelt is trying to break one of the old-time established traditions of the country; calling it a third-term, which he has no right to; he can create a third party and create all the offices, but to nominate himself it was absolutely out of the way, and I think today that it is absolutely unnecessary to establish now and have the third term tradition to exist and not be violated by anybody."

In commenting upon Senator Dixon's statement, Director Mulvane, in charge of the Western bureau of the Republican National Committee, said today:

"It is regarded as extremely unfortunate that at this time, when the entire country deplores the assault upon Col. Roosevelt, and when it is all the more important that nothing should be done to still further inflame the public mind, Senator Dixon, the manager of the Third Party, should deem it proper to give utterance to extravagant, intemperate and absolutely untrue statements.

"In an interview given widespread publicity this morning, Senator Dixon takes occasion to assert that the enemies of Mr. Roosevelt, in public utterance and private speech, have combined to assassinate Mr. Roosevelt's public and private character, and adds that their violent and intemperate assaults upon him are directly responsible for the murderous attack upon him at Milwaukee.

Senator Dixon and the American people know that this is untrue. It is in itself violent and intemperate language which has no foundation in fact. The evidence shows that the half-witted man who fired the shot has been for eleven years the victim of a homicidal mania against a third term candidate. Nothing said or done in this campaign by any opponent of the man whom Senator Dixon's eulogies has been the inspiration of the deplorable act of an insane man."

A report received today from Republican State Chairman, Fred A. Sims, of Indiana, states that the Roosevelt followers are returning so fast to the Republican ranks that "the poll books have to be changed every twenty minutes." He says that all over the State the Republicans have become convinced that with the reuniting of the Republican party and with the large number of Democrats who say that they are satisfied with present conditions, the State can be taken from the doubtful column and placed in the Republican list.

A writer in the Rochester Post-Express says that we hear and read much these days about the mistakes and errors of President Taft. He makes this comment: "President Taft made one mistake when he failed to establish a press bureau to constantly pour forth a stream of panegyric and fulsome eulogy whenever he moved.

"Another mistake was not to have

WAS RED LETTER DAY IN DELAWARE FIGHT IS BETWEEN TAFT AND WILSON

Republicans of Muncie And Vicinity

Look Forward to Speech There

Tonight by Watson.

TO BE IN HOME COUNTY FRIDAY

Former Congressman Will Spend Day in Randolph And Attend Reception in His Honor.

Today was to be red letter day in Delaware county, according to the Muncie Press. James E. Watson of this city, who the Press terms "the foremost political speakers of the country, former member of the house of representatives from the Sixth district, Republican whip of the house and the floor leader of the Taft forces in the recent national convention will speak there tonight. The Press says:

Mr. Watson is well known all over Delaware county and will probably draw the banner political crowd of the campaign at the Wysox Grand theater on Thursday evening. He had been in great demand all over the country this year in the campaign, and found it very difficult to secure the consent of the national committee for a few speeches among his friends and neighbors in eastern Indiana. Mr. Watson was very desirous of speaking here, however, and finally made the necessary arrangements.

Watson had charge of the Taft forces in the Chicago convention successfully competing with Governor Bradley and other Roosevelt leaders, and he knows as much as any one man how the nomination of William Howard Taft was brought about. He will prove to his Delaware county friends as he has done in other localities that there was nothing irregular about the Taft nomination and that the Roosevelt cry of fraud was the usual howl put up by a poor loser.

Following his speech here, Mr. Watson will go to his old home at Winchester. On Friday he will make a whirlwind automobile tour of Randolph county, spreading Republican doctrine broadcast in every direction. The automobile party will start from Winchester early in the morning and visit every locality in the county. The trip it is expected, will arouse the republicans of old Randolph to enthusiasm and roll up another old time majority in that stalwart Republican stronghold. Following the tour of the county a big reception will be held for Watson in Winchester at night, and he will deliver an extended address.

When Mr. Watson speaks at Muncie Thursday night there will be with him on the platform Hon. Isaiah P. Watts, of Winchester, Republican candidate for congress in this district. Mr. Watts was an intimate friend of the late Enos L. Watson, father of "Jim" Watson and he has known "Jim" from boyhood. Mr. Watts will also deliver an address at the Thursday night meeting.

WILL PLAY CONNERSVILLE

Local Team Going There Sunday For Final Game.

A base ball game has been arranged for next Sunday at Connersville, the locals being the attraction. The Connersville fans have been clamoring for a game with Rushville and Manager Marbaugh, taking a chance on the weather will close the season there. The Connersville team has been strengthened since their appearance here earlier in the season and a fast game is expected. Cooley or Maxwell, will pitch for Connersville while Avery or Halterman will be on the mound for Rushville. The game will be called at two o'clock.

There are many amusing things in the political situation, but the prospect of free trade is not one of them.

The mills are busy and working-men are employed on full time. Do you want to change these conditions?

Cincinnati Enquirer's Straw Vote in Rushville Gives Democratic Nominee Greatest Number.

T. R. AND BEVERIDGE THIRD

The straw vote taken by the Cincinnati Enquirer in Rushville Tuesday and published in the Enquirer this morning indicates, if it can be taken as any criterion at all, that the fight in Rushville for president and governor of the State lay between the Republicans and Democrats. In the poll taken here Wilson leads, Taft is a fairly good second and Roosevelt is third. The same holds true in the gubernatorial situation. Ralston is first, Durbin, second and Beveridge, third.

The vote in Rushville was as follows: Wilson, 142; Taft, 120; Roosevelt, 87; Debs, 11. The vote for governor was: Ralston, 126; Durbin, 94; Beveridge, 86. It will readily be seen that Wilson leads Taft by 22 votes and Taft has a lead of 33 over Roosevelt. Ralston got 32 votes more than Durbin and Durbin got 8 more than Beveridge.

The vote was taken mostly in business houses. Three factories were visited and a ballot was taken on a Big Four train between here and Greensburg and on an I. & C. car between here and Indianapolis. One ballot was taken on the street. woESrdeneSofdecmptIn

AMUSEMENTS

"The Stubbornness of Youth" is the title of a Lubin comedy, the first picture at the Princes tonight. The other is a Pathe drama, "A Love Story of Old Japan."

The Palace offers a special two reel Milano attraction tonight entitled "The Battles of Two Palms." The picture is an exact reproduction of the most important conflict of the Italy-Turkish war, being no fake but showing actual scenes.

Mrs. Fiske, in a new play, "The High Road," by Edward Sheldon, author "The Nigger," Salvation Nell," etc., appears at English's in Indianapolis Friday and Saturday. The drama recites the story of a woman's life, recording her early struggle in a hostile environment, her youthful experiences, her steady spiritual development and her gradual rise to the duty that life seems to make her destiny. Despite the fact that the heroine begins life amidst sordid surroundings, she is possessed of a romantic disposition that trends to make the conditions endurable. This she retains throughout the career that it outlined in the play, succeeding in the face of crushing disasters and coming, finally, into a happiness that is all the greater because it has been wholly unselfish. In Mrs. Fiske's support appear Frederick Perry, Arthur Byron, William Lewers and others. The engagement includes a matinee Saturday.

EXPECT LARGE SALE.

What is expected to be one of the largest public sales held in the county will be held next Thursday at the Cullen farm, west of the city, when Will L. Brown will offer a large amount of high grade stock at public auction. Twenty head of horses, one-hundred and sixty-five head of hogs and thirty-five sheep is included in the list.

The Women's Candidate

By BYRON WILLIAMS

"You are wasting your time trying to bully me," replied the girl, without a tremor in her voice. "I am perfectly harmless and I have told you all I know. The man has gone up the beach."

"Aw, come on, Sid," broke in a slender young fellow, turning his back to the rain. "What the use of arguing with th' gal? She ain't th' one we had yesterday."

Without a word the sheriff veered around the beat and, following the fast fading trail, set out in haste after Bedight. Fifteen minutes later the mayor came up from the opposite direction.

"I am sorry, Miss Brooks," he said, sorrowfully, "but I'm afraid you'll get wet after all. We've got to get away from here! I circled around and found the boat these fellows left. I set it adrift with a gale blowing it across the lake, but they are not far behind. We must get under way as soon as possible."

"I don't mind a soaking," replied the young woman, bravely. "It's the lightning that frightens me—and that's about quit."

The man righted the dory hurriedly, piled in their belongings and set the boat from the shore with a sturdy shove. A half mile below, on the beach, he caught sight of three men running toward them—and far away on the wave-whipped lake, a tiny dot of brown could be seen rising and falling as it scudded before the wind. It was the sheriff's row boat.

"Sleeping out of doors," said the mayor, smiling at the woman opposite. "Is very beneficial to the lungs—especially on an island."

CHAPTER VIII.

When the waves are running freely it is a stiff pull from Mine Host's select little hotel in the Wisconsin woods to Glen Island, but on a perfect moonlight night, with just breeze sufficient to ripple the fair hair of a pretty girl opposite, the man at the oars seldom finds the task arduous.

Nor did Mayor Bedight complain. The running ripple slapped the prow of the boat rhythmically and from the shadows along the approaching shore of the island the weird hoot of an owl proclaimed the witchery of the night.

With a scarcely perceptible tilt, the boat grounded on the shelving sandy shore. Bedight sprang out and pulled the craft further upon its cushioned anchorage. The girl sat in the boat, intently watching the mayor. That gentleman took from the locker a basket well laden. Quickly gathering some dry wood, he stacked it over a bunch of tinder-like weeds, touched a match to the pile, set the basket at a safe distance and pulling a revolver from his pocket, fired in the general direction of the moon.

Having maneuvered thus peculiarly, he hastened back to the boat, shoved off and rowed from the shore a hundred yards. Resting on his oars, he let the boat toss idly upon the lake. Five, ten minutes passed. The dry wood burned brightly, making a beacon of light, into the circle of which there came, at last, three shadows, followed by unintelligible conversation.

"They've found it," said the mayor.

picking up his oars and turning the boat toward the hotel.

It was midnight when the sides of the craft rubbed its sister boats at Mine Host's dock. The mayor and the girl crept softly up the winding pathway toward the hotel. Suddenly, in the moonlight ahead, the form of a woman appeared advancing to meet them. The mayor and the girl saw her simultaneously. He stopped instantly with a restraining hand upon the girl's arm.

"Quick!" he commanded, springing in front of his companion and turning her about face. "Walk rapidly down the path to the boathouse."

She complied instantly.

Over his shoulder the mayor saw the woman hesitate, then follow determinedly through the shimmering moonlight.

"Go into the boathouse," directed Bedight hurriedly. "Wait until I engage her in conversation. Then open the rear door and run for the hotel. And be quiet!"

"I understand," whispered the girl, excitedly.

Slipping through the door, she closed it softly. Pulling a cigar from his pocket, the mayor scratched a match on the sole of his shoe and blew a puff of smoke at the same target which earlier in the evening he had failed to hit with his leaden missile.

The woman rounded the corner and came directly toward him.

"I beg your pardon, Mr. Bedight," said "Judge" Vining in a cold, formal voice, "for following you, but as chaperone of the young ladies at the hotel I feel that it was my duty to do so."

The mayor bowed.

"Duty to the one performing it," he interrupted gallantly, "is oftentimes irksome, but begrudgingly done frequently conveys pleasure to another. I do not desire to appear selfish in your eyes, but I find your duty pleases me greatly," bowing again. "Now, the moonlight—"

The "judge" made a deprecating gesture.

"Do not attempt to evade," she warned. "I am deeply in earnest. Where is the—the—" She seemed at a loss to proceed. Finally she threw diplomacy to the winds. "Who was the girl with you—alone—at this hour?"

"Miss Vining," he replied, doggedly.

Miss Vining stepped toward the door and opened it. In the farther end of the boathouse a second door stood open and through it the moonlight streamed.

"I see I have been outwitted," angrily.

"May I walk to the hotel with you?" asked the mayor humbly.

"I prefer to go alone," she replied in a tone of finality, starting up the path.

"Miss Vining!"

It was the mayor calling from the dock.

She stopped.

"What is it, Mr. Bedight?" impatiently.

"You remember saying the girl with me must be one of your party because there were no other young ladies about?"

"Yes," crisply.

The mayor's voice had something of the old ring in it as he asked:

"Did you think of the colored cook?"

But the "judge," going up the path briskly, did not deign to reply.

Fired in the General Direction of the Moon.

of the night? I have a right to know and I—had thought you a gentleman, though I should have known that no gentleman would have—have—" she finished lamely.

"Kissed you?" questioned the mayor, the frivolity scarcely gone from his voice.

"Certainly!" she flashed.

Bedight puffed thoughtfully at his cigar, the fragrant pungency of the tobacco wafting to Jackie as she stood in the moonbeam's path, the light giving an ethereal beauty to her trim, erect figure.

"It was wrong, I admit," he said impulsively, "I am willing to admit that—but I refuse to believe that no gentleman could be other than honored by such a privilege. As one who has tried to be such, I would be willing to do it again if—"

"Mr. Bedight"—the voice was keen now—and the mayor hesitated. "I did not come here to bandy words. I never shall cease regretting that I am in a sense guilty of a misdemeanor or which makes it impossible for me to condemn you as I should—but I warn you not to presume to justify further presumption."

Miss Vining paused effectively.

"But you have not answered my question, Mr. Bedight," she continued. "Who was the girl that came down the path with you?"

The man drew closer to her. The flippancy was gone from his voice. His face was earnest.

"Miss Vining, you have inferred that I am guilty of conduct unbecoming a gentleman. A few mornings ago you ran after me in a spirit of mischief, and in the same spirit I caught you in my arms and kissed you. If I have hurt you I am sincerely sorry, but I, too, am reaping the fruit of folly. You have chosen to arm yourself with a distant demeanor toward me; you rebuff my attempts at entering the circle of your real self, you are 'judge' both on and off the bench, distant, suspicious, haughty. You pursued me; I took toll. With your permission I promise to forget that you ran, but I cannot forget that I kissed you. I am not a boy. I have seen some of the world. I do not know much about love. I have been too busy trying to do something, to fall in love, or else I never have happened to meet the woman. Since coming here I don't know exactly what sort of an enchantment I have entered—but I do know that I cannot forget the ecstasy of the moment when our lips met. You may scorn me and it lies within your power to discipline me—or defeat me—but I shall not try to obliterate the thrill of that brief moment!"

Jackie Vining did not meet his eyes. In her heart she felt a strange, new feeling of elation, a softening of resentment, but women were theorems long before mathematicians struggled with right-angle triangles and hypotenuses, and all their non-understandable descendants, beautiful and sweet and charming as they are, still persist in being man's hardest problem.

"Your frankness in some things," she said without emotion, "is as commendable as your lack of it in others. Must I repeat my question still another time? Who is the girl?"

The mayor spoke firmly and with decision.

"As a man who is at least that much of a gentleman, I refuse to answer. The girl has done no wrong. She—"

"Mr. Bedight, on Tuesday night I saw one of my crowd of young ladies leave the arbor after a clandestine night meeting with you. Tonight I chance to blunder upon you at midnight, again in the company of a young woman. There are no others here, aside from our party. I feel a responsibility and I must insist on your answering."

The mayor shrugged his shoulders.

"Who was she?" asked the "judge" for the fourth time.

"Why don't you ask her yourself?" said the mayor.

"Where is she?"

"The last I saw of her she went through that door," he replied, doggedly.

Miss Vining stepped toward the door and opened it. In the farther end of the boathouse a second door stood open and through it the moonlight streamed.

"I see I have been outwitted," angrily.

"May I walk to the hotel with you?" asked the mayor humbly.

"I prefer to go alone," she replied in a tone of finality, starting up the path.

CHAPTER IX.

When Miss Jackie Vining went to her room after her unsatisfactory attempt to wring from Bedight the name of the unconventional young woman who walked with him in the moonlight, she was angry. And it is possible that, knowing his feelings toward her she was angrier still because with this influence she could not secure the confession she sought. It is likewise true that she felt in her heart that Bedight was right in protecting the name of the girl and should be reprimanded rather than scolded for it—and yet, when a man has almost told a woman he loves her, she has a right to expect that he will do almost anything quasi-reasonable that she asks of him. Failing to handle him augurs complications for the future.

And most of us are alike in this, that we love to appear melodramatic to ourselves, doing all sorts of drastic things that, slept over, we undo, saying things that we inflate with self at the time being and stick a pin into later when our ardor has cooled. In this mood Jackie Vining seated herself at a small writing desk in her room and indited the following letter to the chairman of the woman's club in Bedight's district:

In this mood Jackie Vining seated herself at a small writing desk in her room and indited the following letter to the chairman of the woman's club in Bedight's district:

Molly McConnell.
"Squirrel Inn, Wis.

"My Dear Madam: The campaign in your district is about to open. Among the candidates is one Walter Bedight, who is running for the legislature. He will endeavor to secure the women's votes of the district. While running a race near Squirrel Inn he dropped from his pocket the inclosed bill, which he expects to introduce, if elected.

"I feel it my duty to apprise you of the real character of the man and trust that you will act accordingly.

"Sincerely,
"(Miss) JACKIE VINING."

Placing the letter and the bill in a long envelope, she laid the package on her dresser and retired.

But with the cool touch of the linen and the luxury of full repose, Jackie's heart smote her.

"Well, anyhow," she mused, as she dropped off to sleep, "I'll hold the letter a few days longer."

Miss Farnsworth Sat Holding Her Ankle in Both Hands.

If the aforesaid attorney is a woman, oh, most unfortunate is the man! Thursday was Mayor Bedight's day of attendance upon Margaret Farnsworth, who prosecuted the case against him on the morning of his arrival. She entered the arena after an earnest conference with "Judge" Vining, who seemed unusually distraught and worried.

"Mr. Bedight," began the lady attorney, in a professional tone, "I want to get some balsam for a pillow this morning. Do you know the tree when you see it?"

"Yes—I've been in the North Woods on many a vacation and am familiar with the flora and fauna of the country. I am at your service," responded the mayor.

They set out on foot along a pathway that led into the wood. Once inside the forest it wound in a trail like that the calf made, through spruce and hemlock, poplar and maple, with now and then a white birch adding a touch of vivid contrast to the green. The girl, an enthusiast, was walking ahead and babbling of the nature pictures along the way.

Suddenly Bedight felt something hit him in the back, as though a pellet thrown from close range. He turned inquiringly. From a clump of brush along the trail a woman's hand waved at him and a white paper fluttered to the path. Turning, the mayor retraced his steps. The messenger crouched low and Bedight, having secured the message, touched his fingers to his lips and waited her a salutation, chaste and replete with appreciation.

And then from ahead came the surprised call of Miss Farnsworth.

"Hurry!" cautioned a voice from behind the clump of greenery.

"Coming," cried Bedight, turning and forging ahead through the wood. A pair of pheasants arose, with drumming whirr from beside the path. "There!" exclaimed the mayor, accepting the birds as the foundation for a clever ruse, "you've frightened them away."

POMERENE GOT ON COLD TRAIL

Ohio Senator Has It In for Some Hoosier.

GOT A LETTER FROM INDIANA

This Purported to Give Harrowing Details of the Perkins Interest in the Campaign of Senator Beveridge in 1904, and Led to the Calling of Several Indians Before the Senate Investigating Committee.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The gentleman who put the con in Connersville, Ind., is being sought by Senator Atlee Pomerene of Ohio, militant inquisitor of the senate committee investigating campaign funds. If he finds him he firmly believes he will have established the identity of the fellow who sent him information in regard to the money that George W. Perkins gave to Albert J. Beveridge, the present Bull Moose candidate for governor of Indiana, in his campaign for re-election to the senate in 1904.

Three smug-looking politicians from Indiana arrived in Washington yesterday and a little later they were on the witness stand before the Clapp committee telling what they knew about money bestowed by Perkins on Beveridge for campaign purposes in 1904.

Senator Pomerene had received a letter several days ago from Indiana purporting to give him all the harrowing details of the transaction and urging him to call certain Indiana witnesses, among them those present at yesterday's hearing, who could tell about it. Mr. Perkins had testified that he sent $10,000 to Mr. Beveridge, but that the Indiana senator returned it to him. Senator Pomerene had convinced himself that he was on the track of a much larger fund and that this $10,000 was only a part of the total supplied to Beveridge by Perkins.

Three witnesses in turn, Larz Whitcomb, Lee G. Rothschild and John F. Hayes, all one time political lieutenants of Senator Beveridge, testified to the fact that the money had been returned. The proposed gifts were identified by each of the witnesses, as follows: From George W. Perkins, three checks for $10,000 each; from Edward B. McLane of Greenfield, O., a cousin of the senator, $25,000, and from Gifford Pinchot, $2,500. The witnesses knew of no other funds contributed to Senator Beveridge's campaign.

Senator Pomerene succeeded in scoring, however, by bringing out the fact that Mr. Perkins contributed $30,000 to the Beveridge campaign. Perkins himself has said that $10,000 was all he could recall ever having sent to Mr. Beveridge. One of Senator Pomerene's purposes in digging into the Indiana contributions was to discredit, if possible, Mr. Perkins's testimony before the committee.

The committee, after this brief session, recessed for the day. Senator Clapp said the committee might have no more witnesses until after election. Senator Beveridge wired that he could come on Saturday. The committee sent a telegram to him asking him if he could appear earlier. If he fails to respond it is believed the committee will give up the quest for information. Senator Penrose communicated with the committee from New York the information that he did not desire to testify at this time.

IN JURY'S HANDS

Becker Case Now Is Up to the Twelve

Good Men and True.

New York, Oct. 24.—The best and the worst for Lieutenant Becker has all been said. The jurors went to their hotel last night to sleep over Mr. McIntyre's furious denunciation of the informers and of District Attorney Whitman and over Assistant District Attorney Frank Moss's calm analysis of the defense's own evidence as proof that Becker's was the reckless and indomitable will behind the murder of Herman Rosenthal.

The charge to the jury was begun by Justice Goff at 10:30 o'clock this morning, and shortly before noon the jury retired to make up their minds whether Becker was the master or the victim of murderers.

DIAZ REVOLUTION WAS SHORT LIVED

Madero's Troops Take Old President's Nephew.

Washington, Oct. 24.—General Felix Diaz's defeat and capture by Mexican federal forces near Vera Cruz officially has been reported to Washington. Both Consul Canada and Commander Hughes of the Des Moines cabled the news of the federal victory. Ditz's defeat is taken here to mean the collapse of the entire revolutionary movement which centered in him.

Commander Hughes reported that the federal forces had taken possession of the city of Vera Cruz. There was much fighting for five or six hours within the city limits. Medical officers and assistants have been sent out through the city by Commander Hughes to give such assistance as might be possible. The naval officer stated that definite and reliable information regarding the situation was almost unobtainable. Consul Canada made essentially the same report, adding that Diaz, his staff and most of his men had been captured and disarmed.

The news was a great surprise to officials of the state department and officers of the army and navy stationed at the departments. From the very first General Diaz had been picked to win.

The general opinion here is that the defeat of General Diaz is likely to mark the turning in affairs in Mexico and prove a great setback to Zapata, Orozco, Salazar and other rebels now in the field against the Madero government. The manner in which the Madero government has made good on its claim that Diaz would be crushed, is expected greatly to enhance the prestige of the entire administration, both at home and abroad.

Diaz to Be Executed.

City of Mexico, Oct. 24.—General Felix Diaz, Colonel Diaz Ordaz and all the officers of the rebellious troops and marines will be haled immediately before a court-martial and doubtless will suffer the death penalty. Orders have been issued for the convening of the court, which will be presided over by General Beltran. General Diaz, although not now a member of the army, is amenable in such court under the law which provides for such trial of any civilian under like circumstances. The soldiers of the rebellious troops will be decimated—one in ten being executed. They will be chosen by lot to pay the penalty for all.

THE FIREWORKS TO BEGIN LATER

Preliminary Inquiry Into the Harvester Trust.

MORGAN COMPANY FARED WELL

Inquiry Among Bankers and Others Interested in the Organization of the International Harvester Company Reveals Profits Which Accrued to Promoting Company For Putting Gigantic Concern in Working Order.

New York, Oct. 24.—When the government suit to show that the International Harvester company is a combination violating the Sherman anti-trust law was shifted to New York city, seven witnesses were examined before Special Examiner R. S. Taylor. It was said that George W. Perkins, Cyrus H. McCormick, Charles Deering, George F. Baker, the McCormicks, Norman B. Ream, E. H. Garry, and the other well-known capitalists mentioned in the bill will not become witnesses at all. According to Edwin P. Grosvenor, special assistant attorney general in charge of the prosecution, there is to be no chance taken in the way of immunity baths, as in the beef trust cases.

The initial proceedings were described as dummy day, in that the witnesses principally were bankers, brokers and lawyers' clerks, whose names appeared as the incorporators of the harvester company in 1902, some of whom were officers and directors of the company overnight between Aug. 12 and Aug. 13. From other witnesses, however, it was established that:

J. P. Morgan & Co. were allotted $13,500,000 worth of stock for organizing the $120,000,000 company, out of which it was said that $10,000,000 had to be deducted for the promoting company's expenses, leaving them a net profit of $3,500,000.

Another witness who owned an independent company for a year or two, also revealed on the stand that he knew very little about it, even to the extent of not remembering exactly where he got $945,000 to buy out the independent. He went abroad soon after that and did not know an officer or director of the company he was supposed to own.

The suit was brought by the government April 30 of this year, and this is the third hearing, one having been held in Minneapolis and one in Chicago. The hearing will return to Chicago tonight. The proceedings here were mostly calm, not an objection being raised, nor a cross word exchanged. The work was preliminary. The fireworks will start up later, it is said.

HASN'T A FRIEND

Even Jack Johnson's Own Brother Turns Against Him.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Charles Johnson, brother of Jack, for some time occupied the attention of the federal grand jury, which is investigating white slave charges in connection with the case of the negro pugilist. He went into the jury room overjoyed at the opportunity to testify against his brother.

"It is the hand of God," he said as he entered the room. "The Lord has taken this fellow in hand and is directing justice at him."

The witness is said to have told the grand jury much of importance in the federal investigation. Johnson was followed by Joseph Levy, secretary to the negro pugilist.

Lucille Cameron, the girl involved, will be recalled to complete her testimony before the grand jury. She is now with her mother at a hotel, guarded by a deputy United States marshal. Mrs. Cameron-Falconet, mother of the girl, says that complete reconciliation has been effected.

What Each Pupil Costs.

Indianapolis, Oct. 24.—In a statement of the conditions of Indiana schools by Charles A. Greathouse, state superintendent of public instruction, it is shown that the average cost to the state for each pupil enrolled in the commissioned high schools of the state for the school year of 1911-12 was $45.88. In township schools of that character the average cost for each pupil was $51.35, while it was $40.89 in the town schools and $46.39 in the city schools.

Murderer Made His Escape.

Rockport, Ind., Oct. 24.—No news has been received here regarding the whereabouts of Harley King of Grand View, who stabbed and killed Samuel Kahler, Kahler, conductor of an interurban car, had separated King and C. E. Painter, when the former tried to attack Painter on a traction car. It is said King followed Kahler from the car into the traction office and stabbed him.

The Deadly Spiral Glide.

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 24.—Louis Mitchell, president of the American Aviators' association, while flying at the exposition grounds here, lost control of his machine at a height of 600 feet and was dashed to death. Mitchell was making a spiral glide when he lost control. Fully 7,000 persons saw the tragedy.

HARD TO GET A LINE ON BALKAN SITUATION

All Sides Claim a Succession of Victories.

London, Oct. 24.—According to the dispatches which are being received here, a succession of victories is claimed by all sides in the Balkan conflict. Sofia, Belgrade and Athens all have highly colored reports of successes for their respective armies, and Constantinople hears that the Turks are winning all along the frontier. Only Montenegro appears to be uncertain of the result of the fighting of its armies.

The Servians send out the news that the town of Novilazar, capital of the sandjak in which Austria takes a keen interest, has fallen into the hands of the Servian army, and that a second force of their armies has taken or is about to take Keumanova. The reports from Servian sources agree that the town is surrounded, but disagree as to its actual capture. Pristina, Kutchana and Kratovo are other towns reported in these Belgrade dispatches to have been taken.

The Bulgarians, with Adrianople as their goal, are meeting with equal success, if credence is to be placed in Sofia as a source of information. The newspapers of the Bulgarian capital report many victories and say that the Bulgars have occupied all the Turkish positions between Tchillepo and Karlok. The last named is fourteen miles southwest of Adrianople. To the east of Adrianople another Bulgarian army, described as of huge size, is said to be ill-disciplined.

Greece claims victories at Ellason and at Serfida. Athens dispatches use the word "annihilated" to describe the havoc wrought upon the Turks at the latter place. The Turks who resisted at Ellason are reported to be retreating hastily with the Greek army at their heels.

FINE PROGRESS

Colonel Roosevelt's Condition Shows Most Encouraging Improvement.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Oct. 24.—The important improvement shown by Colonel Roosevelt since he has found complete rest in the quiet of his own home is most reassuring. So much has he been strengthened that the strict injunction that he must see no one was modified to the extent of permitting him to have a short chat with Dr. Lyman Abbott and George W. Perkins. Dr. Abbott was the first visitor outside of the family admitted to the patient's sickroom since his return.

The attending physicians say that the colonel is distinctly better. His wound shows that the healthy healing processes are going on. If he continues to evidence the same steady improvement, it is but a matter of a few days before he will resume the direction of his campaign.

Saved Imperiled Crew.

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 24.—During use of the breeches buoy in the teeth of a thirty-mile southeast gale enabled members of four federal life-saving crews to rescue sixteen sailors, the entire crew of the Italian bark Catrina, bound from Montevideo to New York. The ship had been blown in among the shoals, two miles off Barnegat inlet, and seems to be doomed. The hard lashing of the waves has opened her seams and the crew fears she will go to pieces.

Expatriate Hoosiers to Meet.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Saturday evening a "speechless supper" will be given at the Hotel La Salle by the members of the Indiana Society of Chicago. Six hundred are expected to attend. The features of an unusual program have not been announced except as to the concluding number. This will be an exhibition of moving pictures to be explained by President Wilbur Nesbit.

STATE LAUGHS AT THIS SUIT

Race Track Promoters Not Taken Seriously.

POWER OF THE MILITARY ARM

Officers in Attorney General's Office, Referring to Action to Enjoin Presence of Militia at Porter Racetrack, Declare That No Court Can Stop the Carrying Out of an Executive Act and That Troops Are There to Stay.

Indianapolis, Oct. 24.—"A court has about as much right to enjoin the governor of a state from using the militia as a justice of peace would have to enjoin a legislature from passing some law," said James E. McCullough, assistant attorney general, when he heard of the suit filed by the Porter racetrack promoters in which they seek to enjoin the governor, his secretary and national guard officers from using troops in stopping the races.

Mr. McCullough expressed the belief that the racetrack promoters will not succeed with their suit. He declared that no court can stop the carrying out of an executive act, and that the guardsmen will not be withdrawn from the Porter racetrack until the governor directs them to return home.

Brigadier General Charles A. Garrard, who is in Porter as representative of the state, telephoned Mark Thistlethwaite, secretary to Governor Marshall, that "all is well." He said that the day had passed without incident, so far as the troops are concerned.

"The troops will remain at Porter until the last horse has been taken from the grounds and we make certain that no more attempts will be made to continue the races," said Mr. Thistlethwaite.

INJUNCTION IS SOUGHT

Valparaiso, Ind., Oct. 24.—Attorneys for the Racing Foundation Corporation of America have applied to the circuit court for an injunction against Governor Thomas Marshall, Mark Thistlethwaite, his secretary, Adjutant General McCoy and Brigadier General Gerard of Indianapolis, Major Freyer-muth and Captain Guy Kimball of South Bend and Captain George Healey of Reusseler, members of the Indiana national guard, to restrain them from interfering with races conducted under the auspices of the corporation and from a further occupancy of plaintiffs' grounds at Mineral Springs.

Judge McMahon decided that the proceedings should be heard by Judge Harry Tuthill of the superior court, who was appointed special judge in the original injunction proceedings brought by the state against the corporation and which are still pending. The application states that the plaintiffs own the grounds, which are being greatly damaged by the action of the state in taking possession and occupying them with troops, and that, further, the corporation under the Seller's law is permitted to hold fifteen-day race meets.

There have been no races at the track since the militia took charge of the grounds, and the few visitors who applied at the grounds were denied admission by the troops.

MADE A HIT

Negro Porter at Frankfort Scores Success With Musical Compositions.

Frankfort, Ind., Oct. 24.—John Berry, a negro, who has been employed at a barber shop here as a porter, has musical talent and a short time back wrote two sacred songs, a comic opera and a short story, sending them all to a Chicago company.

The company accepted his offerings and sent him a check for $3,000 for the comic opera, $200 each for two sacred songs and $67 for the story.

Berry was so delighted that he resigned his position, left for his home at Muncie, and will devote his entire time to writing music.

They Are Thoroughly Alarmed.

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 24.—The election and registration manipulators responsible for the frauds this year, which had their climax in placing more than 4,000 fictitious names on the registration lists, are thoroughly alarmed. Twenty-five more indictments have been returned against names of alleged voters who are not known at the addresses given in the registration lists. Andy Berkley, inspector of registration in the Taylorville precinct, is charged with corruptly listing 322 names.

LODGES VOTE TO MARCH IN PARADE

Jesus Christ. The sermon in part was as follows:

"There are many things inspiring in this great audience tonight. I know what brings you out here in such great crowds. You would not come out night after night the way you do here to hear the biggest infidel on this side of hell rail at Jesus Christ and his gospel. You come because the human heart goes out after God, and you will never be satisfied till you know Him and rest in Him.

"Where now there is cursing and profanity there will be reverence for your mother's God and respect for the name of Christ. If He comes in He will not only save your soul and keep it out of hell when you die, but He'll put a new meaning on the life you're living now and use it to keep some other soul out of hell.

"In one way or another the Son of God will never cease to knock at the door of your life you will let Him in, or until you grieve Him forever away and then you'll never hear Him knock again.

"1. He knocks by the very presence of Christianity and Christian institutions in the world. You can't think for one minute of the humble rise of the religion of Jesus Christ and its steady progress around the world in the face of the most bitter and awful opposition that hell has ever hurled against any creed the world has ever known until it girdles the world today and is the recognized religion of every civilized nation on the face of the earth. I say, you can't think of this for one single minute without at the same time stopping to think of its claims upon your own soul.

"Caesar tried to burn it out; Julian tried to argue it out; Celsus tried to laugh it out; Porphyry tried to sneer it out; unfaithful priests tried to sell it out; a whole tribe of infidels, from Voltaire to Ingelsol have tried to curse it out, have fought it and spit their venom at it, but it stands today mightier than a million Gibralters with science, philosophy, and the brains of the world worshipping at its shrine.

"2. He knocks by the power of a Consistent Christian Life.

"I tell you, Christian people, the world's got its eye on us, and somebody has rightly said that the world's got an eagle's eye for anything that's inconsistent in the life of a Christian.

"Now, my friends, I'm perfectly willing to admit that we've got some pretty near sticks in the church, and we can't do anything with them, but we got them all from your side, and don't you think it's rather mean after pulling off that sort of material on us to blame us for having it?

"But, on the other hand, there are thousands of real good Christians, and you know them to be genuine and true, and their saintly. Godly lives have inspired you. If I could find no other example for many of you, I could take the life of your saintly, Godly mother, and that would be enough for you.

"A good for nothing, red nosed bear cuzzler was cursing the church one day, and, referring to church members, said, 'The whole crowd's a set of hypocrites,' and I said, 'Well, then your mother's one, for she's a member,' and then he shut up.

"Tell me, your mother may be in the skies tonight, but whatever else you've doubted, you never doubted the sincerity of your mother's faith; and whatever else you've criticized, you had only words of praise for your mother's life. And yet I suppose that even she made mistakes.

"3. He knocks by means of misfortune and affliction. There are lots of people in heaven tonight because their hearts were broken on earth. God has to come to some people and bring to naught their plans and let them stand with broken idols in their hands. He has to take away their store, and take away their health and send bereavement before they will think of God and let Him have the proper place in their lives.

"4. He knocks in the great danger moments of life. Just as long as you can clip your coupons and run your automobile and have red corpuscles in your blood, you give God the go by, but when the devil got you in troubles, then you ask God to get you out and promise God to obey Him. It's contemptible to treat God like that; there's not one scintilla of manhood or one spark of womanhood about it. But listen! I can tell you something a good deal worse, and that is to make a promise to God in a time like that and then be cowardly enough to forget it when the danger is over.

"When people don't like my preaching down there they get up and go out. But there will be a meeting up there, and where you'll have to stay through until God tells you to go, and then you'll have to go to the right or left, just as God says, Man, don't be unreasonable, and stubborn, and insane tonight. Let Christ save you tonight. If you will, Christ will.

BALLOT PRINTING DELAYED FOR DAY

titled to have one judge, one clerk and one sheriff on every board.

There has never been a serious controversy over the manner in which an election was conducted in any precinct in Rush county, and it is believed there will be none this year. The Rush county elections have always been in the hands of a capable and adequate election commission, and this has probably had much to do with keeping down controversies.

Clerk Norris and Messrs Thomas and Barrett are old hands at managing elections, all having served as commissioners before. They are not needlessly technical or exacting, but they insist on the election supplies being distributed, the vote being cast, enrolled and counted, and the returns being canvassed strictly in conformity to the election law.

The three commissioners, and the clerks they will select to assist them will organize themselves into a returning board on the evening of election day and will be in session in the circuit court room from that time on until the vote for the entire county has been officially returned and tabulated and the result declared. The three commissioners will be in session at the clerk's office throughout election day to provide for any emergencies that may arise.
